Hosting President could make you a celebrity

Associated Press Writer

Wake up at 6 a.m. He does. And he makes his own bed.

Be prepared to hear a lot about Amy. Like any other father, the president of the United States dotes on his blonde, 10-year-old daughter. He'll tell you all about her tree house and her dog, Grits.

And his wife. You'll hear about Rosalynn and her trip to South America.

Don't panic. He'll only stay a night.

And afterward you'll be able to organize tours for the neighbors and point to the sheets on your bed and say, "The president slept here."

Jimmy Carter has a penchant for visiting.

On three trips so far, to New England, to the South and to the Midwest, he has scorned hotels and motels, where presidents usually stay. Instead, he bunked with people he considers plain folks.

If they were, they aren't now.

They're celebrities. That's one of the things that happens when the president spends the night.

Here are other things that happen — courtesy of Ed and Kay Thompson of Clinton, Mass.; Owen and Elizabeth Cooper of Yazoo City, Miss., and Woody and Mary Diehl of Indianola, Iowa. They have given Jimmy Carter bed and board, and they know what it's like.

If you're picked, you'll get the word a few days ahead of time. But the White House staff will ask you to keep the visit secret until Press Secretary Jody Powell announces it.

Agents will put lights and detectors in your yard to stop intruders. They will put blackout blinds on your windows to eliminate silhouettes. If you've got a motor home, the agents will make it their headquarters.

If your laundry room is handy, like Woody Diehl's was, some of the White House staff will take it over. You can depend on the Secret Service to pick the least likely bedroom as the safest. for the president.

"It was a room upstairs that hadn't had anything done with it for years," mutters Elizabeth Cooper. "The carpet was worn. It was where the girls had stayed when they were little."

At the Diehls, Carter got the master bedroom. Woody and Mary moved out "a few personal things." Woody took some clothes out of the closet to make room. Mary put new linen on the bed.

Aides put a special phone by the president's bed. It was connected to the White House. Two other such phones were installed for his staff. Expect about 400 calls, says Elizabeth Cooper.

"Once we got inside, he carried it down the hall by himself and put it away," says Woody Diehl.

Elizabeth Cooper forgot and called him Jimmy. She apologized.

"Oh, call me Jimmy," he said.

But she couldn't. The whole family called him Mr. President.

He sat at one end of Mary Diehl's sofa. She shuddered. It's the worst seat in her living room.

"He was a lot more at ease than I was," she says. "He has so many interests, he makes you feel at home. Our oldest granddaughter has a record collection. He liked that. Our youngest granddaughter is the same age as Amy. I'm interested in Indian artifacts. So's he."

Carter lifted one grandson into his arms. The 11-month-old boy looked at him sleepily. Then he perched a 4-year-old granddaughter in his lap and fed her some of his ice cream.

Mary Diehl learned he likes mixed nuts. So she had some for him. But he's easy to please. Kay Thompson put out cheese dip and crackers.

"I feel at home," Carter said.

Elizabeth Cooper promised White House aides "we would make it easy for him to be in his room by 11 p.m. At five minutes after 11 p.m., we went to bed."

But the Thompsons couldn't resist staying up without him to watch his arrival on television.

"Before we went to bed," says Woody Diehl, "Mary asked him if he'd like some milk, buttermilk or fruit.

"He said, 'I'd just like a glass of buttermilk.'

"Well, Mary likes buttermilk, too, so she poured them each a glass. I got a little fruit yogurt out of the refrigerator. We leaned there against the kitchen counter and visited for another 10 or 20 minutes just like he was your neighbor down the road.

"I said, 'I'm usually up by 6.' He said, 'Six will be fine. You call me at 6, and I won't bother to set my alarm.'

"At 6 in the morning, I went down the hall and knocked on the door. I said, 'Mr. President, it's 6 o'clock' — just like I used to call my hired men."

But a thought stopped Woody Diehl in his tracks.

He added through the bedroom door: "The cold is where the hot should be and the hot is where the cold should be."

To a family, Carter's hosts say he comes to breakfast bright-eyed and bushy-tailed. There are no reports of presidential snoring.

He told Elizabeth Cooper he didn't want breakfast.

At the Diehls, he asked for just coffee.

3rd of schools have immunization violators

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — More than a third of the public and nonpublic schools in the state have at least some pupils not in compliance with the state law requiring immunization against certain diseases, a state official said today.

"These might range anywhere from one or two children to the 5,000 pupils in the Kansas City school district," said James Donoho, dicector of the state Health Division's immunization section.

Donoho said his office has not determined exactly how many of the state's 1.1 million elementary and secondary school students are not in compliance with the state law. But he speculated that it would not be in excess of 5 percent of the total school population.

He said 286 of the 648 public schools and 158 of the 569 private schools have pupils not in compliance.

Last week in Kansas City school officials sent some 13,000 public school pupils notices that they would be prohibited from attending classes beginning today because they did not have the required vaccinations against polio, measles, diphtheria and tetanus. Over the weekend, however, more than half that number were vaccinated, officials said.

But officials said 5,000 pupils still have not met the requirements of the immunization law and will not be allowed in classes until they do.

"We've got a classical case of parent immobility," said Kansas City school Superintendent Robert Wheeler. "I'd hate to exclude even one kid."

Officer quits, 2 disciplined

Public Safety Director Kenneth A. Francis announced today that one officer had turned in his resignation and two officers had been disciplined by the department following an investigation concerning officers buying merchandise at reduced prices from a local store.

Francis refused to release the names of the officers disciplined or the name of the officer who resigned.

He said it is in the best interest of the department that the names of the disciplined officers not be released and name of the resigned officer is being withheld until certain legal aspects of the case can be resolved.

One of the two officers was suspended without pay for 40 hours and put on a four-month probation.

The other disciplined officer was given a letter of reprimand and transferred to another shift.

Francis said the officer who turned in his resignation has since asked that the resignation be nullified, but Francis refused and referred the officer to the city manager's office.

He said that he is in the process of replacing the officer.

The investigation involving the officers and the purchasing of automotive merchandise at reduced prices was begun three weeks ago and culminated in the resignation and the disciplining of the other two officers during a board of inquiry.

Francis said officers were guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer and pointed out that even though the violations were not criminal, the public safety officers are constantly in the public eye and must always conduct themselves with highest standards.

The investigation against the officer who resigned was dropped when the resignation was turned in.

Francis refused to give the name of the store involved in the discounts. He said the store manager did not want to get his store involved and since there was no apparent criminal actions he had decided not to name the store.

Workshop employees move to new building

Sheltered Workshop employees work on one of their projects today at the new Scott County community Sheltered Workshop, 515 N. West St., Sikeston. Dedication ceremonies were held Sunday for the newly completed building.

New projects pending

Scott County's Community Sheltered Workshop was hosted 150 persons Sunday afternoon in dedication ceremonies and open house at the new building located at 515 N. West St.

The recently completed building was constructed at a cost of nearly $500,000 and includes three offices, a lunch room, conference room, six separate workroom areas, and a 15,000 square foot open shop area.

Errol K. Gann, state supervisor of extended employment of sheltered workshops, Department of Secondary and Elementary Education, was the featured speaker at the dedication.

B.W. Gunn, director of the workshop, said the new projects are pending for companies in northeast Arkansas.

Workshop employees are currently doing packaging work for IXL, Manufacturing of Bernie, pricing packages for Interstate Bakeries, constructing pallets for Triangle Industries and doing various projects for Todd Laundry of Sikeston.

New Madrid holds man wanted in truck theft

NEW MADRID — A Newport, Ark. man is in custody in the New Madrid County Jail, following his capture late Saturday in Ste. Genevieve County for auto theft and burglary.

According to reports filed at the Sikeston Public Safety Department, Rickie Jean Bell, 25, escaped from custody in Arkansas where he was being held on burglary charges.

Bell is charged in New Madrid County with the theft of a pickup from McNew Auto Sales, 915 S. Main St. Sikeston, sometime between Friday and early Saturday. A number of keys and a flashlight were also reported missing from the auto sales firm.

The pickup and tools were recovered at the Interstate 55 rest area by St. Genevieve County Deputy Sheriffs and Bell was taken into custody for Sikeston officials.

Bell was later transported to New Madrid County.

Four persons received minor injuries in three separate accidents Saturday, Sunday and today, the highway patrol announced today.

A teen-ager received minor injuries in a two-car accident at 9:40 p.m. Saturday on old Highway 160, one mile east of Doniphan.

The patrol said a car driven west by Thomas Earl Robinson, 30, of St. Louis was on the wrong side of the road in a curve and sideswiped a car driven east by Thomas Wayne Earls, 16, of Fairdealing Route One.

Injured was a passenger in the Earls car, Linda Earls, 14, of Fairdealing Route One, who was taken to Ripley County Hospital in Doniphan.

Robinson was arrested for driving while intoxicated.

A single-vehicle accident at 1:05 a.m. Sunday on Route AA, five and a half miles southeast of Poplar Bluff, caused minor injuries to the driver, Michael Donald Hopkins, 25, of Qulin.

Food stolen from home

EAST PRAIRIE — The home of Ollie Combs, 325 Wilbur St. was burglarized sometime between 7 and 9:20 p.m. Saturday. Groceries and meats valued at $200 were stolen, according to police, who are investigating.

Entry was gained by prying open a side door.

3 SeMo extension workers are recognized

COLUMBIA — Three University of Missouri extension area specialist s working in the southeastern part of the state were honored here recently.

They were Mrs. Hazel Wakefield, area food and nutrition specialist in the Ozark Foothills Extension Area, Ellington; Bill Purnell, Bootheel Extension Area youth specialist, Charleston; and Miss Rebecca Nistendirk, area clothing and textiles specialist in the Bootheel Area, New Madrid.

Mrs. Wakefield was presented a certificate of recognition by Epsilon Sigma Phi, the national extension honorary fraternity, for her work as an extension home economist. She has worked in the Reynolds County University Extension Center since 1946 when she started her extension career.

For the past seven years Mrs. Wakefield has been the supervisor of the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program in the five-county Ozark Foothills Area.

Purnell received a distinguished service award from the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents. He has worked in the Bootheel Area since 1955 and currently coordinates several youth and 4-H programs in the six-county area.

These programs include the Delta Lit-Thumb Garden Project coordinated with the area's Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program; the Delta Little Acorn youth Camp for disadvantaged children; and the Small Farm Family Program.

The University of Missouri Extension Association presented Miss Nistendirk its meritorious service award in recognition of her long and distinguished career. She resigned Aug. 31 with 30 years service.

Her extension career was spent in the Bootheel Area, primarily in New Madrid County. In recent years she has also worked in Dulklin and Pemiscot counties. One of her outstanding extension educational programs was the "sew with cotton" program directed at the youth of the area. She served as chairman of this cooperative effort for 16 years.

The awards were presented on the University of Missouri-Columbia campus last week.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

IS MX RIGHT DEFENSE RX?

Defense Secretary Harold Brown has recommended full-scale development of the MX intercontinental ballistic missile, a superweapon that could upset the strategic balance between this country and the Soviet Union.

Before accepting such fateful advice, President Carter and Congress should give the matter the most careful study, for the MX has as many diplomatic drawbacks as it has technological advantages.

The MX (for missile experimental) would be America's first mobile land-based ICBM. It would be deployed in an underground tunnel. The enemy wouldn't know exactly where it was and could not confidently attack it.

Also, the MX would be more powerful, more accurate and capable of carrying more warheads (14) than any existing ICBM. In one strike, the 300 MXs Brown wants could destroy Russia's land-based missiles, about 70 percent of its striking power.

In a crisis and fearing the loss of the bulk of their strategic power, would not Soviet leaders be under great pressure to strike first, thus making a nuclear holocaust more likely?

Would the Kremlin let the United States retain the MX advantage? Or would it go all out to build similar weapons, giving a costly and dangerous twist to the arms race?

The Air Force, which would benefit from the $30 billion MX program, insiste the new missile is needed because Russia soon will be able to destroy U.S. Minutemen and Titan missiles in their fixed silos?

Although scary, this argument is unconvincing. Many disinterested experts doubt that Moscow's missiles have the accuracy and quick-launch ability to simultaneously attack 1,054 American ICBMS.

And even if this could be done successfully, this country would be left with nuclear-armed bombers and 656 submarine-launched missiles, which are almost invulnerable to surprise attack and could destroy the Soviet Union as a functioning society.

In addition, there is the gravest doubt that the 300 MX missiles could be designed, tested, procured and deployed for anything like the Air Force's stated $30 billion. Given inflation and the Pentagon's record of cost overruns, we might be talking about $100 billion for a weapon of undemonstrated need.

For all these reasons, the White House and Congress should adopt a wary and show-me attitude toward the Air Force campaign for the MX. Even if the country can afford the weapon, it might not be able to afford the arms race MX could foment, nor its undermining of present arms control negotiations.

BASIC SEX ATTITUDE TRAINING

You can put a woman into uniform, but you can't make everybody salute her.

Researchers tested the cadets' attitudes toward women both before and after exposure to new female cadets. As reported by Science Service, not only were their attitudes found to be more "traditional" than the attitudes of nonmilitary male colleges students to begin with, but they became ever more chauvinistic after their first contact with women in basic training.

The investigators offer a number of explanations, including the fact that the men's choice of a traditionally male-dominated career like the military indicates they would be less receptive to changing female roles than their civilian counterparts.

In addition, the integration of women into the service academies was mandated by Congress and has thus placed male cadets in a "forced compliance situation."

All of which leads us to predict that the nation's first female cadets and midshippersons should make pretty good officers. They're having to fight quite a battle just to win their commissions.

HOW THEY STARTED

Frank W. Woolworth's first job was helping out on rush days in a small general store. For this he received no compensation except the knowledge of the work. His second job was with the leading dry-goods store of the town. Here he had to work the first three months without pay; then he received $3.50 per week. The turning point in his career occurred when business was slow and his decided to inaugurate a five-cent sale. It was young Woolworth's job to arrange the wares. The sale was a huge success, and Frank's idea for a new kind of store was born.

Ralph Waldo Emerson, the philosopher, was working on his uncle's farm when he heard an ignorant farm-hand remark that he though people were always praying, and that their prayers were always answered. The words impressed young Emerson profoundly. From this encounter he was convinced he should not look to books nor to educated people for wisdom, but to life. The philosophy which came from Emerson's pen after he reached this decision has shaped the lives of many.

Henry Ford's beginning in mechanics and work with machinery was as small as Woolworth's start in business or Emerson's beginning in philosophy. Henry's friend, Will Bennett, had been given a watch, but it was not running. Henry persuaded Will to let him fix it. In the next few months Henry had taken apart and put together again every timepiece on the place. So Henry Ford's lifelong work with machinery began with the repairing of a watch.

FARMLAND VALUES SPIRAL HIGHER

After checking USDA's latest figures on farmland values, prospective buyers may be wishing they had made the big purchase a year earlier.

Not that the prices were any bargain back then. As of February 1976, buyers were shelling out an average of $390 an acre, or about 14 per cent more than the year before, But in the year ended this past February, average U.S. farmland prices shot up an even steeper 17 per cent to $456 an acre.

Biggest increases centered on the Lake States and Corn Belt, where all but two of the eight states showed gains of 25 per cent and more. Even the two states -- Missouri and Wisconsin -- beat the national average with advances of 18 to 19 per cent, respectively.

Illinois set the pace for the Naation with a 36 per cent hike in the value of its farmland. An acre that sold for a little over $1,000 last year had a price tag averaging $1,450 this past February. Illinois, incidentally, was the only Corn Belt State where land prices were over $1,000 an acre in early 1970. But this February it had been joined byy all the other States in the Corn Belt except Missouri.

On the other hand, land values advanced the least in the Southwest, Southeast, and Northeast. Three States--California, Nevada, and New Jersey-- bucked the trend completely with no increase at all.

But while it cost no more than last year to buy an acre of farmland in New Jersey, that State remained the Nation's most expensive, with an acre going for $2,051. Connecticut was right behind at $2,024. Meantime, Nevada replaced New Mexico this year as the least expensive place in the U.S to shop for land, with prices hovering at $94 an acre.

Please note that we have not used the word inflation, but buyers of farmland know that the dollar isn't worth as much as it was a year ago.

MANY ROOMS AND HOUSES, BUT FEW ACDEPTABLE OR USABLE

The housing situation in Paris, as in several other towns in the Cannon Dam and Mark Twain Lake area, is admittedly serious. Many people are unable to find mobile home parking space, apartments, houses , or sleeping rooms.

Observers of the Paris situation however, say it isn't so much a shortage of some of these as it is unavailability, or unacceptability because they are not modern.

In the downtown business district alone, there are at least 35 or 40 second floor rooms that would make apartments or sleeping rooms, space that at one time in the past were occupied by roomers or apartment dwellers. In all but a few cases, they are not modern, and in all cases of which we have heard, owners are unwilling to modernize because of costs.

Elsewhere in Paris, there are several vacant homes which could be used. Some are not modern, some of them the owners do not want to rent.

In other instances, there are large homes that could be converted into apartments, but here again, owners either are unwilling to pay costs of conversion or for personal reasons do not want to do so.

If some organization could take a census of the space that already exists, and persuade the owners to modernize or rent, part of our housing problem could be solved, and business improved in Paris. This is probably also true in Perry, Center, and Monroe City, other towns that seem to be having the same difficulty.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Political Promissory Note:

Labor Chiefs 'Wonder' Why Carter Didn't

Deliver on Promises in Special '76 letter

WASHINGTON -- During the spring of 1976, Jimmy Carter was on the closed-door-hotel circuit. Desperately he needed labor support. And just as desperately, he constantly met privately with union chiefs and promised them the best of political Arpege.

The candidate, with critical primaries just around the bend, especially needed the backing of the maritime unions' money and manpower. Labor support for him was logjammed and the influential waterfront leaders could blast it open for him.

So Jimmy Carter first met with the AFL-CIO maritime department's liaison man, the National Marine Engineers Beneficial Assn. president Jesse Calhoon, in a Watergate apartment on May 11, 1976. He promised to fight for their program and for bigger oil cargos in American ships manned by American crews and for heavier subsidies to the American merchant fleet owners.

But Calhoon and his colthe Seafarers' Paul Hall who heads the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department, and who directs what I do believe is the most effective, well-financed, sophisticated laborite political organization in the land, wanted the promises in writing.

Calhoon agreed to work up the letter. He and Jimmy Carter met again on May 25, 1976, in Suite 2124 of the Hotel Sheraton in New York City. At nine that evening Calhoon walked into candidate Carter's suite just as Mayor Abe Beame, all aglow, was leaving. The marine engineers' president had a draft of the letter -- call it a promissory note -- in his pocket.

In a few minutes Jesse handed the document to the Democratic frontrunner. Jimmy Carter went over each word in the proposed letter. The President-to-be edited it personally. Took out a word or two. Added a few. Changed others. He mused aloud, conjecturing on how each sentence would tie him up if President and then called on to deliver on the promissory note.

Finally Jimmy's letter was officially mailed to "Dear Jesse." And the maritime unions quickly endorsed the candidate, dispatched letters to all other national labor presidents, got the campaign rolling -- and thus broke the logjam which had held up heavy labor endorsements.

For six years the maritime trade unions had been fighting for the kind of cargo preference (or cargo equity, as the unionists called it) which Jimmy had pledged in writing way back. After Jan. 1, 1977, they began lobbying in Congress for a law which would make it mandatory that 10 per cent of all imported oil be imported in American tankers.

Back in 1974 the water front unions actually had pushed a 30-per-cent-oil-in-American tankers bill through both houses. Five times Jerry Ford had pledged to his old and good friend Paul Hall and to Jesse Calhoon, too, that he would sign such a bill. But Ford vetoes it. So he lost the maritime trades union support just as he had lost the powerful building trades when he vetoes situs picketing.

As the congressional session rolled on, President Carter declared for the cargo preference bill on July 8, 1977. He didn't exactly walk up Pennsylvania Avenue waving an "I support cargo preference" sign. But he did acknowledge he was for the controversial bill which the unions said would create 5,000 new jobs at little cost.

There is, after all, a Dear Jesse (signed Jimmy) letter in Calhoon's files. Then came hearings. President Carter sent an Under Secretary of Commerce up the Hill to testify for the maritime unions' bill. But not one probill witness, no one at all, from the Departments of Defense, Transportation, Treasury, the Council of Economic Advisers of the Office of the Special Trade Representative.

On Oct. 19 the House defeated the bill by 257 to 165, though three years earlier the unions, led by Paul Hall, had pushed a tougher bill (calling for 30 per cent of imported oil to move in American tankers) through the House by 266 to 233. One of the top maritime labor chiefs said, "Okay, we took a licking, but we start all over again."

They're shrewd politicos, those waterfront unionists. They don't get into a public showdown battle with an American President. They blaming Jimmy Carter for not really delivering on his promissory note. But neither are they cheering him as a friend who lost while fighting at their side. Most of them don't believe he did charge up the Hill energetically. And most of them -- at this moment -- don't plan to go cheering energetically for him in future battles.

What does startle and move them are the defections of liberal Democrats and Democrat-Liberal Party Representatives whom labor made. For example there is Stanley Lundine whom the labor machine elected as the first Democratic Congressman in 100 years from Jamestown, N.Y., area. AFL-CIO political (COPE) director Al Barkan dispatched a well-equipped campaign army to put Lundine across last year. Lundine voted against the bill backed by COPE's real chief, George Meany and Paul Hall.

Though the Congressional Black Caucus, for the most part, voted for the bill, Michigan's John Conyers fought it. So did such Democrat-Liberals as New York's Ben Rosenthal and Jonathan Bingham. And the very loud Congresswoman Elizabeth Holtzman. So did other liberals and young members.

Since very little has been as close to the hearts of the maritime union chiefs as the cargo preference bill, there will be a reassessment of political support during next congressional campaigns.

Twice during this congressional session liberal Democrats who have taken labor's money and logistic support have helped defeat labor's key objectives -- common situs extended picketing and now the cargo bill which would have raised the mandatory amount of oil in American bottoms to 9.5 per cent.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Big Business Conspiring To Kill Consumer Agency

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON – Several of the nation's most high-powered corporations have joined in a conspiracy to kill the unborn Consumer Protection Agency. An awesome array of corporate powers have succeeded in blocking the proposed agency for more than eight years.

They include such companies as Armour, Armstrong Cork, Bethlehem Steel, Exxon, Firestone, Georgia Pacific, Maytag, Shell, Sun Oil and United Airlines.

They have formed a pressure bloc which they call the Ad Hoc Consumer Issues Working Group. This lobbying force has pulled wires, scratched backs and twisted arms on Capitol Hill. It has also provided blistering, anti-consumer speeches for willing congressmen.

Despite these efforts, the consumer legislation squeaked through the House Government Operations Committee last May by a 22 to 21 vote. It would create a small, independent, nonregulatory agency to represent the consumers in the policy councils.

But the horrified business nabobs saw it as an institutionalized Ralph Nader, with all the harassment powers of the federal government. They got busy behind the scenes, therefore, lining up votes to strangle the agency in its crib.

But the pro-consumer congressmen engaged in some backroom strategy of their own. They worked out an agreement to modify the legislation to satisfy some of its critics. This might get the bill past the formidable opposition that the Big Business lobby has organized in the House.

Word of the compromise leaked out and the alarmed corporate powers called an emergency meeting the other day at the Washington Hilton. There was much bellyaching and backbiting. Some businessmen complained that no one let them know what was going on. Others cursed the Carter administration for trying to sneak the hated legislation past them.

Armstrong Cork's bluntspoken Emmett Hines, who presided over the secret session, was not interested in a compromise that would satisfy both sides. He just wanted to bury the Consumer Protection Agency. "The better the bill," he snorted, "the worse it is for us."

Another participant also rejected any concessions, warning the assembled business tycoons to remember the "Trojan Horse" story. The moral of the story was to beware of strangers bearing gifts.

Still another warned that the White House would throw its full weight behind the bill because "there is a big need for a White House victory, and this could well be it."

The assembled tycoons agreed to make a last-ditch effort to defeat the consumer bill. Already, congressmen are being bombarded with calls and letters from their friends with

The wright man. Hard-working Joe Shosid is a one-man band who beats the drums for House Democratic leader Jim Wright in Fort Worth, Texas.

During the past two campaigns, Shosid ran Wright's congressional office in Texas, served simultaneously as Wright's campaign treasurer, disbursed campaign funds to his own advertising agency and purchased campaign ads through himself. Here are the fascinating details:

Shoside drew a $27,000 annual salary from the taxpayers until the end of last year. He also owned a firm called Advertising Unlimited, which handled Wright's political advertising during the two campaigns. He funneled $42,855 in campaign business through his own agency.

Last December, Shosid sold his advertising agency and gave up the campaign treasurer's post to avoid even the appearance, he said, of a conflict of interest. To ease the sacrifice, Wright quietly increased his congressional salary to $38,000.

As campaign treasurer, Shosid previously helped raise $132,435 for the congressman's 1976 campaign, although Wright had an easy campaign and didn't need the money. Many of the contributions came from the aerospace, construction and highway lobbies that need a friend like Wright on Capitol Hill.

Both Wright and Shosid talked to us at length. The congressman admitted Shosid's juggling act was "unusual" but insisted it was "not unethical." Wright added that he was unaware any income at all had gone into Shosid's firm.

Shosid claimed that most of the money went to pay for ads and commercials, with only about $5,000 going to the firm in commissions. His total profit on the campaign, Shosid told us, was no more than $1,000.

Footnote: Wright himself is a skilled advertising man and collected $6,000 in fees from the Shosid firm several years ago.

Washington Whirl: Rep. Bob Leggett, D-Calif., is fuming over an incident at the White House, friends confide. He stopped by to present his constituents' views on California water problems. When he came out, part of a White House tree had fallen on his car, causing some $250 in damage.

– Last July, we revealed that a House communications subcommittee staff had written a scathing report, blaming the networks for the daily diet of murders, rapes and muggings on television. There is a sequel to the story. The report was quietly watered down by the Republicans. One Democrat complained that they "totally whitewashed the networks." In the showdown, Chairman Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., voted with the Republicans for the sweetness-and-light report. He happens to be a former broadcaster. His broadcast background, countered a congressional spokesman, gave him the expertise to decide the issue.

IS MX RIGHT DEFENSE RX?

Defense Secretary Harold Brown has recommended full-scale development of the MX intercontinental ballistic missile, a superweapon that could upset the strategic balance between this country and the Soviet Union.

Before accepting such fateful advice, President Carter and Congress should give the matter the most careful study, for the MX has as many diplomatic drawbacks as it has technological advantages.

The MX (for missile experimental) would be America's first mobile land-based ICBM. It would be deployed in an underground tunnel. The enemy wouldn't know exactly where it was and could not confidently attack it.

Also, the MX would be more powerful, more accurate and capable of carrying more warheads (14) than any existing ICBM. In one strike, the 300 MXs Brown wants could destroy Russia's land-based missiles, about 70 percent of its striking power.

In a crisis and fearing the loss of the bulk of their strategic power, would not Soviet leaders be under great pressure to strike first, thus making a nuclear holocaust more likely?

Would the Kremlin let the United States retain the MX advantage? Or would it go all out to build similar weapons, giving a costly and dangerous twist to the arms race?

The Air Force, which would benefit from the $30 billion MX program, insiste the new missile is needed because Russia soon will be able to destroy U.S. Minutemen and Titan missiles in their fixed silos?

Although scary, this argument is unconvincing. Many disinterested experts doubt that Moscow's missiles have the accuracy and quick-launch ability to simultaneously attack 1,054 American ICBMS.

And even if this could be done successfully, this country would be left with nuclear-armed bombers and 656 submarine-launched missiles, which are almost invulnerable to surprise attack and could destroy the Soviet Union as a functioning society.

In addition, there is the gravest doubt that the 300 MX missiles could be designed, tested, procured and deployed for anything like the Air Force's stated $30 billion. Given inflation and the Pentagon's record of cost overruns, we might be talking about $100 billion for a weapon of undemonstrated need.

For all these reasons, the White House and Congress should adopt a wary and show-me attitude toward the Air Force campaign for the MX. Even if the country can afford the weapon, it might not be able to afford the arms race MX could foment, nor its undermining of present arms control negotiations.

Labor Chiefs 'Wonder' Why Carter Didn't

Deliver on Promises in Special '76 letter

WASHINGTON -- During the spring of 1976, Jimmy Carter was on the closed-door-hotel circuit. Desperately he needed labor support. And just as desperately, he constantly met privately with union chiefs and promised them the best of political Arpege.

The candidate, with critical primaries just around the bend, especially needed the backing of the maritime unions' money and manpower. Labor support for him was logjammed and the influential waterfront leaders could blast it open for him.

So Jimmy Carter first met with the AFL-CIO maritime department's liaison man, the National Marine Engineers Beneficial Assn. president Jesse Calhoon, in a Watergate apartment on May 11, 1976. He promised to fight for their program and for bigger oil cargos in American ships manned by American crews and for heavier subsidies to the American merchant fleet owners.

But Calhoon and his colthe Seafarers' Paul Hall who heads the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department, and who directs what I do believe is the most effective, well-financed, sophisticated laborite political organization in the land, wanted the promises in writing.

Calhoon agreed to work up the letter. He and Jimmy Carter met again on May 25, 1976, in Suite 2124 of the Hotel Sheraton in New York City. At nine that evening Calhoon walked into candidate Carter's suite just as Mayor Abe Beame, all aglow, was leaving. The marine engineers' president had a draft of the letter -- call it a promissory note -- in his pocket.

In a few minutes Jesse handed the document to the Democratic frontrunner. Jimmy Carter went over each word in the proposed letter. The President-to-be edited it personally. Took out a word or two. Added a few. Changed others. He mused aloud, conjecturing on how each sentence would tie him up if President and then called on to deliver on the promissory note.

Finally Jimmy's letter was officially mailed to "Dear Jesse." And the maritime unions quickly endorsed the candidate, dispatched letters to all other national labor presidents, got the campaign rolling -- and thus broke the logjam which had held up heavy labor endorsements.

For six years the maritime trade unions had been fighting for the kind of cargo preference (or cargo equity, as the unionists called it) which Jimmy had pledged in writing way back. After Jan. 1, 1977, they began lobbying in Congress for a law which would make it mandatory that 10 per cent of all imported oil be imported in American tankers.

Back in 1974 the water front unions actually had pushed a 30-per-cent-oil-in-American tankers bill through both houses. Five times Jerry Ford had pledged to his old and good friend Paul Hall and to Jesse Calhoon, too, that he would sign such a bill. But Ford vetoes it. So he lost the maritime trades union support just as he had lost the powerful building trades when he vetoes situs picketing.

As the congressional session rolled on, President Carter declared for the cargo preference bill on July 8, 1977. He didn't exactly walk up Pennsylvania Avenue waving an "I support cargo preference" sign. But he did acknowledge he was for the controversial bill which the unions said would create 5,000 new jobs at little cost.

There is, after all, a Dear Jesse (signed Jimmy) letter in Calhoon's files. Then came hearings. President Carter sent an Under Secretary of Commerce up the Hill to testify for the maritime unions' bill. But not one probill witness, no one at all, from the Departments of Defense, Transportation, Treasury, the Council of Economic Advisers of the Office of the Special Trade Representative.

On Oct. 19 the House defeated the bill by 257 to 165, though three years earlier the unions, led by Paul Hall, had pushed a tougher bill (calling for 30 per cent of imported oil to move in American tankers) through the House by 266 to 233. One of the top maritime labor chiefs said, "Okay, we took a licking, but we start all over again."

They're shrewd politicos, those waterfront unionists. They don't get into a public showdown battle with an American President. They blaming Jimmy Carter for not really delivering on his promissory note. But neither are they cheering him as a friend who lost while fighting at their side. Most of them don't believe he did charge up the Hill energetically. And most of them -- at this moment -- don't plan to go cheering energetically for him in future battles.

What does startle and move them are the defections of liberal Democrats and Democrat-Liberal Party Representatives whom labor made. For example there is Stanley Lundine whom the labor machine elected as the first Democratic Congressman in 100 years from Jamestown, N.Y., area. AFL-CIO political (COPE) director Al Barkan dispatched a well-equipped campaign army to put Lundine across last year. Lundine voted against the bill backed by COPE's real chief, George Meany and Paul Hall.

Though the Congressional Black Caucus, for the most part, voted for the bill, Michigan's John Conyers fought it. So did such Democrat-Liberals as New York's Ben Rosenthal and Jonathan Bingham. And the very loud Congresswoman Elizabeth Holtzman. So did other liberals and young members.

Since very little has been as close to the hearts of the maritime union chiefs as the cargo preference bill, there will be a reassessment of political support during next congressional campaigns.

Twice during this congressional session liberal Democrats who have taken labor's money and logistic support have helped defeat labor's key objectives -- common situs extended picketing and now the cargo bill which would have raised the mandatory amount of oil in American bottoms to 9.5 per cent.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Big Business Conspiring To Kill Consumer Agency

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON – Several of the nation's most high-powered corporations have joined in a conspiracy to kill the unborn Consumer Protection Agency. An awesome array of corporate powers have succeeded in blocking the proposed agency for more than eight years.

They include such companies as Armour, Armstrong Cork, Bethlehem Steel, Exxon, Firestone, Georgia Pacific, Maytag, Shell, Sun Oil and United Airlines.

They have formed a pressure bloc which they call the Ad Hoc Consumer Issues Working Group. This lobbying force has pulled wires, scratched backs and twisted arms on Capitol Hill. It has also provided blistering, anti-consumer speeches for willing congressmen.

Despite these efforts, the consumer legislation squeaked through the House Government Operations Committee last May by a 22 to 21 vote. It would create a small, independent, nonregulatory agency to represent the consumers in the policy councils.

But the horrified business nabobs saw it as an institutionalized Ralph Nader, with all the harassment powers of the federal government. They got busy behind the scenes, therefore, lining up votes to strangle the agency in its crib.

But the pro-consumer congressmen engaged in some backroom strategy of their own. They worked out an agreement to modify the legislation to satisfy some of its critics. This might get the bill past the formidable opposition that the Big Business lobby has organized in the House.

Word of the compromise leaked out and the alarmed corporate powers called an emergency meeting the other day at the Washington Hilton. There was much bellyaching and backbiting. Some businessmen complained that no one let them know what was going on. Others cursed the Carter administration for trying to sneak the hated legislation past them.

Armstrong Cork's bluntspoken Emmett Hines, who presided over the secret session, was not interested in a compromise that would satisfy both sides. He just wanted to bury the Consumer Protection Agency. "The better the bill," he snorted, "the worse it is for us."

Another participant also rejected any concessions, warning the assembled business tycoons to remember the "Trojan Horse" story. The moral of the story was to beware of strangers bearing gifts.

Still another warned that the White House would throw its full weight behind the bill because "there is a big need for a White House victory, and this could well be it."

The assembled tycoons agreed to make a last-ditch effort to defeat the consumer bill. Already, congressmen are being bombarded with calls and letters from their friends with [illegible]

The Wright man: Hard-working Joe Shosid is a one-man band who beats the drums for House Democratic leader Jim Wright in Fort Worth, Texas.

During the past two campaigns, Shosid ran Wright's congressional office in Texas, served simultaneously as Wright's campaign treasurer, disbursed campaign funds to his own advertising agency and purchased campaign ads through himself. Here are the fascinating details:

Shoside drew a $27,000 annual salary from the taxpayers until the end of last year. He also owned a firm called Advertising Unlimited, which handled Wright's political advertising during the two campaigns. He funneled $42,855 in campaign business through his own agency.

Last December, Shosid sold his advertising agency and gave up the campaign treasurer's post to avoid even the appearance, he said, of a conflict of interest. To ease the sacrifice, Wright quietly increased his congressional salary to $38,000.

As campaign treasurer, Shosid previously helped raise $132,435 for the congressman's 1976 campaign, although Wright had an easy campaign and didn't need the money. Many of the contributions came from the aerospace, construction and highway lobbies that need a friend like Wright on Capitol Hill.

Both Wright and Shosid talked to us at length. The congressman admitted Shosid's juggling act was "unusual" but insisted it was "not unethical." Wright added that he was unaware any income at all had gone into Shosid's firm.

Shosid claimed that most of the money went to pay for ads and commercials, with only about $5,000 going to the firm in commissions. His total profit on the campaign, Shosid told us, was no more than $1,000.

Footnote: Wright himself is a skilled advertising man and collected $6,000 in fees from the Shosid firm several years ago.

Washington Whirl: Rep. Bob Leggett, D-Calif., is fuming over an incident at the White House, friends confide. He stopped by to present his constituents' views on California water problems. When he came out, part of a White House tree had fallen on his car, causing some $250 in damage.

– Last July, we revealed that a House communications subcommittee staff had written a scathing report, blaming the networks for the daily diet of murders, rapes and muggings on television. There is a sequel to the story. The report was quietly watered down by the Republicans. One Democrat complained that they "totally whitewashed the networks." In the showdown, Chairman Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., voted with the Republicans for the sweetness-and-light report. He happens to be a former broadcaster. His broadcast background, countered a congressional spokesman, gave him the expertise to decide the issue.

Today's News Briefs

Amtrak cutback begins today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Amtrak commuters found their regular trains canceled today as the national passenger rail service began making budgetdictated cutbacks, mostly in the Northeast.

An Amtrak spokesman said Sunday four trains were being cut this week and others tentatively are scheduled for elimination on Nov. 6. He said the lines might yet be saved if Congress approves more money.

A Senate Appropriations subcommittee voted last week to give Amtrak an additional $18 million to keep the trains running, but final congressional action still must be taken.

The planned cutbacks would hit the busy Washington-to-Boston corridor hardest with an average of 22 daily trains serving those routes being dropped.

The trains canceled included two of eight regular Turboliner runs between Chicago and Milwaukee and the "Clamdigger," a weekday commuter service between Providence and New Haven, the spokesman said.

Metroliner service between New York and New Haven also was terminated due to a change in the line's electrical system, he said.

The planned cuts are intended to help ease an annual $50 million Amtrak operating deficit. Officials estimated the cancellations would save $28 million a year and eliminate about 1,000 jobs.

Soviet Lithuanians riot

MOSCOW (AP) — An estimated 15,000 Lithuanians streamed out of a soccer stadium in Vilnius, ripped down propaganda posters, overturned cars and set police vehicles afire in some of the worst rioting since the Soviet Union took over the Baltic country in 1940, dissident sources said.

A spokesman for the Interior Ministry in Vilnius (Vilna), the capital of Soviet Lithuania, admitted there was a "disturbance" after a soccer match between a Lithuanian and Russian team on Oct. 10. But he said it was not serious.

"As often happens, several teen-agers got into a fight after the game," he said. "Four of them were detained, spoken to and let go."

One dissident, ambulance medic Alexander Podrabinek, said he visited Vilnius and was told the trouble began when the crowd at the match began to shout "Russians go home" and "Katsapy," a derogatory term for Russians.

When the game ended, the spectators started their rampage through the streets. Militiamen, security police and auxiliary policemen tried to control the rioting, but when they made arrests, the crowd surged in to free the prisoners, residents said.

The next morning, troops armed with automatic weapons patrolled the streets.

Podrabinek said he didn't know how many people were arrested. He said he was told there was another disturbance four nights later but could not confirm it.

Hijackers to be handed over

SINGAPORE (AP) — The Singapore government will hand over to Vietnam the four men who hijacked a Vietnamese airliner last week, Radio Hanoi reported today.

There was no immediate confirmation of the report from the Singapore government.

The broadcast was the first public comment on the hijacking by the Vietnamese government. It said the hijackers had "committed crimes in Vietnamese air space."

One of the hijackers shot and killed the plane's flight engineer and radio operator and another one stabbed and badly wounded a steward.

The Singapore government said earlier that it would hold an inquiry to determine the facts of the incident "which will then be processed in accordance with international laws and conventions governing such matters."

The newspaper New Nation reported the four men were seeking political asylum in the United States or France after first asking to stay in Fingapore. A government spokesman refused to confirm or deny the report.

Paycheck difference cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $311 difference between a typical federal employee's retirement check and a monthly Social Security payment helped convince government workers to shun the Social Security system.

But the higher benefit wasn't the only difference that led federal workers to fight successfully against integration of their pension plan with Social Security.

Some federal employees already qualify for both plans, meaning they can now look forward to two checks.

And civil servants maintain their higher pension was intended. A bigger chunk of their paycheck goes to the retirement fund than is paid by those under Social Security, and career employees enter government service partly because of the promise of the higher pension.

The Social Security system is going broke, however, and the federal employees are being looked at hungrily by some as a potential multibillion dollar infusion of cash for the system.

But the proposal by the House Ways and Means Committee to bring them under the Social Security umbrella was thrown out by a 386-38 vote Wednesday, partly because of civil service resistance and partly in fear that the plan was not sufficiently thought out.

Added help may be on way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Additional help may be coming for companies whose workers and communities are hurt by foreign competition.

The proposals would help American firms compete with imports, but also would try to soften the impact when foreign competition costs workers their jobs, administration officials said Sunday.

2 PFA figures arraigned

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Two former officials of the bankrupt Progressive Farmers Association were arraigned today on indictments charging them with securities violations.

Donald Burks, who has been identified in testimony as a former PFA president, and Darence Cloninger, a former sales manager and financial consultant, were arraigned this morning in Greene County Circuit Court on 10 counts each of violating state securities laws.

Cloninger was freed on a $10,000 bond, and Burks was returned to the Greene County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond.

They were indicted Thursday by the Greene County Grand Jury on the charges. A third person indicted last week had not been arraigned by this morning.

Cloninger and Russell E. Phillips, an organizer of the defunct farm cooperative, were indicted by the same grand jury Oct. 5 on 21 counts of fraud in the sale of securities.

Burks, 45, of Fordland, turned himself in to Springfield police Sundayafternoon. He said he had been in traveling in Canada and the United States looking unsuccessfully for a job.

Burks appeared before Judge Max Bacon of Greene County Circuit Court this morning without a lawyer and told the judge he was prepared to stand trial immediately. Bacon told him to return to court Thursday with a lawyer.

Forged checks reported

Two forgeries have been reported to the Sikeston Public Safety Department.

According to reports, two checks, one for $65 and the other for $35, were passed at Bruce's Big Star on Oct. 22. The checks were made out on checks belonging to the account of Mrs. Estelle M. Stone, 117 W. Malone Ave., on a Security National Bank account. Mrs. Stone has been dead for five years and it is not known where the checks were found.

The checks were signed by a Jeff Hopper and a John Harper. The subject was described as a white male, approximately 5 feet, 8 inches to 5 feet, 10 inches tall, with long hair.

The public received more than $15.1 billion in insurance company health insurance benefits in 1975, or an average of more than $41 million a day.

Oran hosts Region 8 meeting

The meeting was attended by 400 Jaycees from the 40 chapters that make up the District 8 Southeast Missouri Region.

Featured at the meeting were state officers Howard Alexander, state individual development vice president; Dean Powell, state chapter management vice president; Steve Overman, executive vice president of Missouri Jaycees; and Derek Wheeler, the regional director of Region 8.

The Oran Jaycees were awarded the outstanding chapter in division one, and Ken Schlitt, president of the Oran Jaycees was awarded outstanding local president of the Oran Jaycees was awarded outstanding local president in division one.

The fall regional meeting marked the end of the first six months of the Jaycee year. It also ended the Oran chapter's activities, which included restoration of the fish pond in Triangle Park, a back to school hayride, Heart Fund drive and Cub Scout sponsorship.

747 jet sets record

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Boeing 747 set a new record for its class of jet Sunday by flying around the world, over both the North and South poles, in 54 hours, 7 minutes and 12 seconds.

The 26,706-mile flight, marked the 50th anniversary of Pan American World Airways.

On board were 169 passengers. Those in first-class seats had paid $3,333 each, while those in "economy" paid $2,222.

The old record of 62 hours, 27 minutes and 35 seconds was set by a TWA cargo jet in 1965.

The Pan Am jet can make hops of more than 7,000 miles before refueling. Its route was from San Francisco to London via the North Pole, then to Cape Town, South Africa, and over the South Pole to Auckland, New Zealand, and back to California.

The jetliner, named Clipper New Horizons, was the same plane that set a record for going around the world via the Tropic of Cancer in May 1976. It was designed for lower weight and longer range and is 47 feet shorter than the standard 747.

"When we first advertised the anniversary flight I couldn't imagine who would want to make a trip like that," said Pan Am spokesman Bill Marsh. "But I was wrong. The thing sold out within five days."

Karl Macklin, 65, of Delray Beach, Fla., said he and his wife took the flight "because I'm getting pretty gosh-danged old and there's a lot of this world I want to see before I die."

In-flight entertainment included 12 movies, a fashion show, special ceremonies over each pole, a Maori dancing display, a strolling musician and a magician.

Pan Am's first flight on Oct. 28, 1927, was a 90-mile mail run from Key West, Fla., to Havana, Cuba.

APPOINTMENTS

NEW YORK (AP) — The appointment of Jeff Katzenberg as vice president-programming for Paramount Television Service has been announced by Paramount Pictures Corp.

In another announcement, Paramount said John Barry had been signed to write the score for the movie "First Love."

'Just Another Dish' Valued at $1750.00.

NORTHBROOK, Ill. — A major art exchange here reports that a man who found several "dishes" in his attic was amazed to learn that one was valued at $1750.00.

The exchange says that, while this price is unusually high, exceptional collector's plates have been appreciating quickly on the market.

To aid investors, the exchange offers a free report on what to look for, when to buy, what to pay and much more, including opportunities in promising plates still at low prices.

To get your free report with no obligation, just send your name, address, and zip code to the Bradford Exchange, 9345 Bradford Place, Northbrook, Illinois 60062. A postcard will do. To be sure of receiving your free copy, please mail your request before Saturday of next week.

Today's News Briefs

Amtrak cutback begins today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Amtrak commuters found their regular trains canceled today as the national passenger rail service began making budgetdictated cutbacks, mostly in the Northeast.

An Amtrak spokesman said Sunday four trains were being cut this week and others tentatively are scheduled for elimination on Nov. 6. He said the lines might yet be saved if Congress approves more money.

A Senate Appropriations subcommittee voted last week to give Amtrak an additional $18 million to keep the trains running, but final congressional action still must be taken.

The planned cutbacks would hit the busy Washington-to-Boston corridor hardest with an average of 22 daily trains serving those routes being dropped.

The trains canceled included two of eight regular Turboliner runs between Chicago and Milwaukee and the "Clamdigger," a weekday commuter service between Providence and New Haven, the spokesman said.

Metroliner service between New York and New Haven also was terminated due to a change in the line's electrical system, he said.

The planned cuts are intended to help ease an annual $50 million Amtrak operating deficit. Officials estimated the cancellations would save $28 million a year and eliminate about 1,000 jobs.

Soviet Lithuanians riot

MOSCOW (AP) — An estimated 15,000 Lithuanians streamed out of a soccer stadium in Vilnius, ripped down propaganda posters, overturned cars and set police vehicles afire in some of the worst rioting since the Soviet Union took over the Baltic country in 1940, dissident sources said.

A spokesman for the Interior Ministry in Vilnius (Vilna), the capital of Soviet Lithuania, admitted there was a "disturbance" after a soccer match between a Lithuanian and Russian team on Oct. 10. But he said it was not serious.

"As often happens, several teen-agers got into a fight after the game," he said. "Four of them were detained, spoken to and let go."

One dissident, ambulance medic Alexander Podrabinek, said he visited Vilnius and was told the trouble began when the crowd at the match began to shout "Russians go home" and "Katsapy," a derogatory term for Russians.

When the game ended, the spectators started their rampage through the streets. Militiamen, security police and auxiliary policemen tried to control the rioting, but when they made arrests, the crowd surged in to free the prisoners, residents said.

The next morning, troops armed with automatic weapons patrolled the streets.

Podrabinek said he didn't know how many people were arrested. He said he was told there was another disturbance four nights later but could not confirm it.

Hijackers to be handed over

SINGAPORE (AP) — The Singapore government will hand over to Vietnam the four men who hijacked a Vietnamese airliner last week, Radio Hanoi reported today.

There was no immediate confirmation of the report from the Singapore government.

The broadcast was the first public comment on the hijacking by the Vietnamese government. It said the hijackers had "committed crimes in Vietnamese air space."

One of the hijackers shot and killed the plane's flight engineer and radio operator and another one stabbed and badly wounded a steward.

The Singapore government said earlier that it would hold an inquiry to determine the facts of the incident "which will then be processed in accordance with international laws and conventions governing such matters."

The newspaper New Nation reported the four men were seeking political asylum in the United States or France after first asking to stay in Fingapore. A government spokesman refused to confirm or deny the report.

Paycheck difference cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $311 difference between a typical federal employee's retirement check and a monthly Social Security payment helped convince government workers to shun the Social Security system.

But the higher benefit wasn't the only difference that led federal workers to fight successfully against integration of their pension plan with Social Security.

Some federal employees already qualify for both plans, meaning they can now look forward to two checks.

And civil servants maintain their higher pension was intended. A bigger chunk of their paycheck goes to the retirement fund than is paid by those under Social Security, and career employees enter government service partly because of the promise of the higher pension.

The Social Security system is going broke, however, and the federal employees are being looked at hungrily by some as a potential multibillion dollar infusion of cash for the system.

But the proposal by the House Ways and Means Committee to bring them under the Social Security umbrella was thrown out by a 386-38 vote Wednesday, partly because of civil service resistance and partly in fear that the plan was not sufficiently thought out.

Added help may be on way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Additional help may be coming for companies whose workers and communities are hurt by foreign competition.

The proposals would help American firms compete with imports, but also would try to soften the impact when foreign competition costs workers their jobs, administration officials said Sunday.

2 PFA figures arraigned

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Two former officials of the bankrupt Pregressive Farmers Association were arraigned today on indictments charging them with securities violations.

Donald Burks, who has been identified in testimony as a former PFA president, and Darence Cloninger, a former sales manager and financial consultant, were arraigned this morning in Greene County Circuit Court on 10 counts each of violating state securities laws.

Cloninger was freed on a $10,-000 bond, and Burks was returned to the Greene County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond.

They were indicted Thursday by the Greene County Grand Jury on the charges. A third person indicted last week had not been arraigned by this morning.

Cloninger and Russell E. Phillips, an organizer of the defunct farm cooperative, were indicted by the same grand jury Oct. 5 on 21 counts of fraud in the sale of securities.

Burks, 45, of Fordland, turned himself in to Springfield police Sundayafternoon. He said he had been in traveling in Canada and the United States looking unsuccessfully for a job.

Burks appeared before Judge Max Bacon of Greene County Circuit Court this morning without a lawyer and told the judge he was prepared to stand trial immediately. Bacon told him to return to court Thursday with a lawyer.

Forged checks reported

Two forgeries have been reported to the Sikeston Public Safety Department.

According to reports, two checks, one for $65 and the other for $35, were passed at Bruce's Big Star on Oct. 22. The checks were made out on checks belonging to the account of Mrs. Estelle M. Stone, 117 W. Malone Ave., on a Security National Bank account. Mrs. Stone has been dead for five years and it is not known where the checks were found.

The checks were signed by a Jeff Hopper and a John Harper. The subject was described as a white male, approximately 5 feet, 8 inches to 5 feet, 10 inches tall, with long hair.

The public received more than $15.1 billion in insurance company health insurance benefits in 1975, or an average of more than $41 million a day.

Oran hosts Region 8 meeting

The meeting was attended by 400 Jaycees from the 40 chapters that make up the District 8 Southeast Missouri Region.

Featured at the meeting were state officers Howard Alexander, state individual development vice president; Dean Powell, state chapter management vice president; Steve Overman, executive vice president of Missouri Jaycees; and Derek Wheeler, the regional director of Region 8.

The Oran Jaycees were awarded the outstanding chapter in division one, and Ken Schlitt, president of the Oran Jaycees was awarded outstanding local president of the Oran Jaycees was awarded outstanding local president in division one.

The fall regional meeting marked the end of the first six months of the Jaycee year. It also ended the Oran chapter's activities, which included restoration of the fish pond in Triangle Park, a back to school hayride, Heart Fund drive and Cub Scout sponsorship.

747 jet sets record

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Boeing 747 set a new record for its class of jet Sunday by flying around the world, over both the North and South poles, in 54 hours, 7 minutes and 12 seconds.

The 26,706-mile flight, marked the 50th anniversary of Pan American World Airways.

On board were 169 passengers. Those in first-class seats had paid $3,333 each, while those in "economy" paid $2,222.

The old record of 62 hours, 27 minutes and 35 seconds was set by a TWA cargo jet in 1965.

The Pan Am jet can make hops of more than 7,000 miles before refueling. Its route was from San Francisco to London via the North Pole, then to Cape Town, South Africa, and over the South Pole to Auckland, New Zealand, and back to California.

The jetliner, named Clipper New Horizons, was the same plane that set a record for going around the world via the Tropic of Cancer in May 1976. It was designed for lower weight and longer range and is 47 feet shorter than the standard 747.

"When we first advertised the anniversary flight I couldn't imagine who would want to make a trip like that," said Pan Am spokesman Bill Marsh. "But I was wrong. The thing sold out within five days."

Karl Macklin, 65, of Delray Beach, Fla., said he and his wife took the flight "because I'm getting pretty gosh-danged old and there's a lot of this world I want to see before I die."

In-flight entertainment included 12 movies, a fashion show, special ceremonies over each pole, a Maori dancing display, a strolling musician and a magician.

Pan Am's first flight on Oct. 28, 1927, was a 90-mile mail run from Key West, Fla., to Havana, Cuba.

APPOINTMENTS

NEW YORK (AP) — The appointment of Jeff Katzenberg as vice president-programming for Paramount Television Service has been announced by Paramount Pictures Corp.

In another announcement, Paramount said John Barry had been signed to write the score for the movie "First Love."

'Just Another Dish' Valued at $1750.00.

NORTHBROOK, Ill. — A major art exchange here reports that a man who found several "dishes" in his attic was amazed to learn that one was valued at $1750.00.

The exchange says that, while this price is unusually high, exceptional collector's plates have been appreciating quickly on the market.

To aid investors, the exchange offers a free report on what to look for, when to buy, what to pay and much more, including opportunities in promising plates still at low prices.

To get your free report with no obligation, just send your name, address, and zip code to the Bradford Exchange, 54545 Bradford Place, Northbrook Illinois 60062. A postcard will do. To be sure of receiving your free copy, please mail your request before Saturday of next week.

'Go whole hog for breakfast'

Here's one sure way to be peppy bright and wide-awake to face each day. Go "whole hog" for breakfast.

Breakfast is essential for brain and body to function properly in the morning. A "good" breakfast includes a variety of foods that offer a helathy supply of nutrients. for example, can add both variety anf nutrition to the morning meal.

Forms of pork commonly served as breakfast fare include bacon, ham, sausage, Canadian bacon and sausage links. A 3-ounce serving of ham supplies more than one fourth the adult minimum dai- requirement for protein. All pork is a good source of iron, a mineral vital for formation of healthy blood cells. Pork's greatest contribution to the diet, however, is thiamin, a B-viytamin difficult to obtain from other food sources, yet one important for proper nerve and muscle formation.

While pork can supply a world of vitamins, a well rounded breakfast is recommended for complete daily nutrition and overall shining health. A "perfect" breakfast would include citrus fruit or juice containing vitamin C; meat or eggs supplying protein and B-vitamins; milk for vitamins A and D; and a whole-grain bread product for fiber and B-vitamins.

According to the Presidents Council on Phusical Fitness, eating breakfast almost everyday results in better health than eating it sometimes, rarely or never. Yet many pass up breakfast with excuses such as, "I don't have time," or "I'm trying to lose weight." Breakfast doesn't have to be a traditional breakfast food. A ham sandwich or a Bonanza Cookie can be prepared ahead of time to serve as a tasty yet nutritious morning meal. Dieters should consider breakfast an important asset for reducing. An adequate breakfast can help check a surging appetite, control hunger and prevent pre-lunch snacking.

Many dieters and even those not watching their weight hold a misconception about fat in pork. New breeding techniques have resulted in leaner, meatier hogs. The "new" pork has more protein, less fat and fewer calories than that of yesteryear. Two slices of bacon contain only 90 calories, and 3 ounces of Canadian bacon offer 100 fewer calories than the same amount of broiled sirloin steak. The Weight Watchers organization included pork on its list of approved foods in 1975.

So even the weight-conscious can include pork in their menus for breakfast, that all-important meal necessary for maximum mental and physical efficiency during the morning hours. And pork can put variety in that meal that more than 80% of American families go without. Bacon bits crumbled in scrambled eggs, chunks of cooked sausage baked into whole wheat muffins, country cured ham served on top beaten biscuits would delight any early riser.

Remember that breakfasts don't have to be traditional. do eat "high on the hog" with a nutritional , delicious first meal each day.

Bonanza Breakfast Cookies

⅔ cup oleo or butter
1 cup sugar
1 cup all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt (¼ tsp. if bacon is salty)
3 cups rolled oats
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded sharp cheddar cheese
6 crispy cooked bacon slices (crumbled)
¼ cup wheat germ
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla

Beat together: butter, sugar, egg and vanilla. Add combined flour, soda and salt to butter mixture. Mix well. Stir in oats, cheese, bacon and wheat germ. Drop by rounded tablespoon onto greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes. YIELD: 36 cookies.

This recipe prepared by Elizabeth Witt, Kansas City, first place winner of the 4-H Pork Deomnstrations held at the Missouri State Fair.

Cheesy Pork Sausage English Muffins

1 pound pork sausage meat
6 English muffins, split and toasted
Butter or margarine, room temperature
½ cup applesauce or apple butter
6 or 12 slices process American cheese, as desired

Cut pork sausage into 12 even slices or patties. Cook as directed on package label or in frying pan over low heat until brown on one side. Turn and cook until done and browned on second side. While sausage is cooking spread English muffins with butter or margarine. Keep ½ of muffin halves warm. Spread surface of remaining muffin halves with equal amounts of applesauce or apple butter.

Top each with 1 or 2 cheese slices, as desired, and place on brolier pan. Broil 3 inches from heat source until cheese melts. Overlap 2 hot sausage patties on cheese.

Serve with remaining English muffin halves, cut in half.

Yield: 6 servings.

Waffle Delights

1 cup maple syrup
2 medium-sized apples, pared, cored and sliced in rings
¼ cup raisins
2 tablespoons butter of margarine
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
12 frozen waffles
12 bacon slices, cooked and drained

Place syrup in medium-sized saucepan and heat to boiling. Add apples and raisins. Cover and simmer 5 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in butter and cinnamon. Keep warm until ready to serve. Toast waffles. Place 2 bacon slices on each of 6 waffles. Top with remaining waffles. Pour warm syrup over waffles to serve.

Peach Bran Muffins

2 tablespoons shortening
3 tablespoons sugar
1 egg
¾ cup milk
1 cup bran flakes
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Peach slices

Grease large muffin tins. Cream shortening and sugar. Add egg and beat well. Stir in milk and the bran flakes. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add to bran mixture, mixing just until moistened. Spoon into muffin cups. Bake at 425 degrees for 5 minutes. Place 2 peach slices on top of each muffin. Return to 425 degrees oven for 15 additional minutes.

Cancer detection center at odd

By The Associated Press

Directors of the breast cancer detection centers in Kansas and Missouri are at odds with a recent report that unnecessary mastectomies have been performed because of incorrect diagnoses of cancer.

The heads of two institutions whose diagnoses were questioned in the report, the University of Kansas Medical Center in Kansas City, Kan., and the Cancer Research Center in Columbia, Mo., say reexamination of test results indicate the original findings of breast cancer were correct, with one possible exception.

The report was issued by the health group of consumer advocate Ralph Nader and compiled from preliminary studies by a National Cancer Institute review board. The Nader group concluded that 59 mastectomies were performed unnecessarily on women with benign tumors.

Dr. Larry H. Baker, director of the KU Medical Center unit, said the Nader report was incorrect in its references to two patients diagnosed by the center as having breast cancer.

When the pathology information was rechecked on the two women, the original cancer diagnoses were confirmed, he said.

Dear Ann Landers
Snappy husband getting best of wife

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do about a husband who comes home from work and says, "What did you do all day?" When I tell him I washed clothes (for eight people -- we have six children) he comes back with, "What do you mean YOU washed clothes? The machine did it." I could wring his neck.

He works in a factory and I know his job isn't easy, but if I were to tell him the machines do the work and all he does is stand around, he'd clobber me.

Do you have a snappy comeback for a husband like mine? I'm not very good with words but you are. -- Need Some Answers

Dear Need: Forget it. Don't let the big ape get to you. Deep down he knows better. (P. S. I suppose he thinks the six kids were manufactured by machine, too.)

Dear Ann Landers: May I introduce myself? I am "Stinky," the "inconsiderate slob" whose cigars smell up the office. But I have no intention of taking all those insults lying down.

It so happens I have a very good reason for lighting up a big fat cigar the minute I get to my desk. It's the lousy, cheap perfume the girls wear. Can you imagine working in close quarters with four dames who wear Gardenia from the dime store?

The girls also complain that my dentures go "clickety click." I don't actually have full dentures -- just partials, but they never did fit right and I feel like I have a small tricycle in my mouth. Yes, I do click a little, but only to drown out the sound of the babes who pop their gum all day long. It drives me bonkers.

So you see, Ann, there are two sides to every story. And please don't suggest that I buy them expensive perfume. No deal. -- Maligned.

Dear Mal: How about a Truth Session -- with both sides offering to give up something in order to gain something? Would you give up the stinky cigars if the gals gave up the perfume? Too bad Cy Vance is otherwise engaged. He'd solve the problem in a hurry.

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't laugh at me. I am very serious and need some of your best advice. I am a girl who will be 15 in seven weeks. A certain boy I like a lot is going to ask me for a date any minute. I can just feel it in my bones.

The problem is I wear glasses. I'm expecting him to kiss me goodnight. He wears glasses, too, and sometimes when both parties wear glasses, kissing can be awkward. Should I remove my glasses when we get to the door, in preparation for the kiss -- or would it look too planned? If I took off my glasses and he didn't kiss me I'd fall right through the porch.

Please rush your answer, Ann. This is an emergency. -- Toodie

Dear Toodie: I am typing as fast as I can, honey. I hope the advice reaches you in time.

Glasses will not interfere with a goodnight kiss -- even if both parties are wearing them. It may take a little tilting of the head and jockeying for position but you'll manage, I'm sure. Others have.

How young is too young for a child to learn about sex? That's just one thing you'll find in Ann Landers's new booklet, "How, What and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." Send 50 cents in coin, along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Here's one sure way to be peppy bright and wide-awake to face each day. Go "whole hog" for breakfast.

Breakfast is essential for brain and body to function properly in the morning. A "good" breakfast includes a variety of foods that offer a helathy supply of nutrients. for example, can add both variety anf nutrition to the morning meal.

Forms of pork commonly served as breakfast fare include bacon, ham, sausage, Canadian bacon and sausage links. A 3-ounce serving of ham supplies more than one fourth the adult minimum dai-requirement for protein. All pork is a good source of iron, a mineral vital for formation of healthy blood cells. Pork's greatest contribution to the diet, however, is thiamin, a B-viytamin difficult to obtain from other food sources, yet one important for proper nerve and muscle formation.

While pork can supply a world of vitamins, a well rounded breakfast is recommended for complete daily nutrition and overall shining health. A "perfect" breakfast would include citrus fruit or juice containing vitamin C; meat or eggs supplying protein and B-vitamins; milk for vitamins A and D; and a whole-grain bread product for fiber and B-vitamins.

According to the Presidents Council on Phusical Fitness, eating breakfast almost everyday results in better health than eating it sometimes, rarely or never. Yet many pass up breakfast with excuses such as, "I don't have time," or "I'm trying to lose weight." Breakfast doesn't have to be a traditional breakfast food. A ham sandwich or a Bonanza Cookie can be prepared ahead of time to serve as a tasty yet nutritious morning meal. Dieters should consider breakfast an important asset for reducing. An adequate breakfast can help check a surging appetite, control hunger and prevent pre-lunch snacking.

Many dieters and even those not watching their weight hold a misconception about fat in pork. New breeding techniques have resulted in leaner, meatier hogs. The "new" pork has more protein, less fat and fewer calories than that of yesteryear. Two slices of bacon contain only 90 calories, and 3 ounces of Canadian bacon offer 100 fewer calories than the same amount of broiled sirloin steak. The Weight Watchers organization included pork on its list of approved foods in 1975.

So even the weight-conscious can include pork in their menus for breakfast, that all-important meal necessary for maximum mental and physical efficiency during the morning hours. And pork can put variety in that meal that more than 80% of American families go without. Bacon bits crumbled in scrambled eggs, chunks of cooked sausage baked into whole wheat muffins, country cured ham served on top beaten biscuits would delight any early riser.

Remember that breakfasts don't have to be traditional. do eat "high on the hog" with a nutritional , delicious first meal each day.

Bonanza Breakfast Cookies

⅔ cup oleo or butter
1 cup sugar
1 cup all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt (¼ tsp. if bacon is salty)
3 cups rolled oats
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded sharp cheddar cheese
6 crispy cooked bacon slices (crumbled)
¼ cup wheat germ
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla

Beat together: butter, sugar, egg and vanilla. Add combined flour, soda and salt to butter mixture. Mix well. Stir in oats, cheese, bacon and wheat germ. Drop by rounded tablespoon onto greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes. YIELD: 36 cookies.

This recipe prepared by Elizabeth Witt, Kansas City, first place winner of the 4-H Pork Deomnstrations held at the Missouri State Fair.

Cheesy Pork Sausage English Muffins

1 pound pork sausage meat
6 English muffins, split and toasted
Butter or margarine, room temperature
½ cup applesauce or apple butter
6 or 12 slices process American cheese, as desired

Cut pork sausage into 12 even slices or patties. Cook as directed on package label or in frying pan over low heat until brown on one side. Turn and cook until done and browned on second side. While sausage is cooking spread English muffins with butter or margarine. Keep ½ of muffin halves warm. Spread surface of remaining muffin halves with equal amounts of applesauce or apple butter.

Top each with 1 or 2 cheese slices, as desired, and place on broiler pan. Broil 3 inches from heat source until cheese melts. Overlap 2 hot sausage patties on cheese.

Serve with remaining English muffin halves, cut in half.

Yield: 6 servings.

Waffle Delights

1 cup maple syrup
2 medium-sized apples, pared, cored and sliced in rings
¼ cup raisins
2 tablespoons butter of margarine
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
12 frozen waffles
12 bacon slices, cooked and drained

Place syrup in medium-sized saucepan and heat to boiling. Add apples and raisins. Cover and simmer 5 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in butter and cinnamon. Keep warm until ready to serve. Toast waffles. Place 2 bacon slices on each of 6 waffles. Top with remaining waffles. Pour warm syrup over waffles to serve.

Peach Bran Muffins

2 tablespoons shortening
3 tablespoons sugar
1 egg
¾ cup milk
1 cup bran flakes
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Peach slices

Grease large muffin tins. Cream shortening and sugar. Add egg and beat well. Stir in milk and the bran flakes. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add to bran mixture, mixing just until moistened. Spoon into muffin cups. Bake at 425 degrees for 5 minutes. Place 2 peach slices on top of each muffin. Return to 425 degrees oven for 15 additional minutes.

Chiefs no match for rampaging Browns, 44-7

CLEVELAND (AP) — Billy Andrews, a linebacker for Kansas City and a former member of the Cleveland Browns, was one of the few Chiefs able to take Sunday's 44-7 loss philosophically.

"The Browns did exactly what we expected them to do, exactly," he said with a shrug. "They've been doing it to everybody."

What the Browns did was smother Kansas City's offense and go over and through the bewildered visitors for a total of 544 yards and a club record 34 first downs, with Greg Pruitt and Mike Pruitt doing most of the damage.

The victory, combined with Pittsburgh's loss at Baltimore, gave Cleveland, 5-2, sole possession of first plece in the AFC Central Division.

Greg Pruitt, the much-injured catalyst in Cleveland's offense, jitterbugged his way to 153 yards in 18 carries, capping the spectacular effort with a 78yard touchdown burst late in the third period.

That run, the longest in Pruitt's five-year National Football League career, built the margin to an insurmountable 37-0 and also boosted Pruitt over 500 yards rushing for the season.

Mike Pruitt took over for injured fullback Cleo Miller in the second period and added 96 yards in 20 carries, including a one-yard touchdown dive set up by the other Pruitt's 29-yard dash with a screen pass.

Almost unnoticed during Cleveland's domination of the error-prone Chiefs, 1-6, was quarterback Brian Sipe's passing, which netted 200 yards and a touchdown before reserve Dave Mays took over late in the third period.

Sipe put Cleveland ahead to stay early, taking advantage of the first of three Kansas City fumbles to move the Browns 47 yards for their first touchdown on a seven-yard pass to Gary Parris. Parris later completed Cleveland's scoring on a twoyard reception of a Mays pass.

In between, Don Cockroft methodically raised his string to seven straight successful field goals with boots of 29, 34 and 27 yards and free safety Thom Darden returned a pass interception 18 yards for the other Cleveland touchdown.

"I think it's probably the best overall game we've played in the three years I've been here," said Cleveland Coach Forrest Gregg. "I'd have to say — I would have to finally admit — that the team is where I want it.

"We're 5-2 and we have to play the rest of the season the way we did today," he added.

Kansas City Coach Paul Wiggin, also a former Browns player, was distraught after the devastating loss, in which the Chiefs averted a shutout on Mike Livingston's 22-yard pass to John Brockington with 1:19 remaining.

"This was as bad a situation as I have been in in football," Wiggin said angrily. "The game was a source of embarrassment. We didn't play well at any one point. There were no bright spots. This was a disaster."

Turnabout was fair play — or perhaps it was the turnovers.

"Turnovers were the difference. We had eight of them the last time we met, but we didn't have any this time and were able to keep the upper hand," Oakland Coach John Madden said after his Raiders, literally mugged by Denver 30-7 a couple of weeks ago, turned around and broke the Broncos' backs 24-14 to bring the Mile High City back to earth.

The National Conference, meanwhile, now has the only unbeaten team. The Dallas Cowboys, off to their best start since the team was formed in 1960, mauled Detroit 37-0 on Roger Staubach's three touchdown passes and Efren Herrera's three field goals.

In other National Football League action it was Baltimore 31, Pittsburgh 21; Chicago 26, Green Bay 0; New Orleans 27, Los Angeles 26; San Francisco 20, Tampa Bay 10; Seattle 56, Buffalo 17; San Diego 14, Miami 13; New England 24, New York Jets 13; Washington 23, Philadelphia 17; Cleveland 44, Kansas City 7; Minnesota 14, Atlanta 7, and Cincinnati 13, Houston 10 in overtime. The New York Giants visit St. Louis tonight.

Red Miller, who had the Broncos flying high in his first season as Denver's head coach, could only applaud Oakland's solid, basic play.

"They used their weapons to the utmost," he said. "They had great blocking in running to their left side ... and our two turnovers made a difference. It was just the opposite of what happened in Oakland" when Denver played virtually errorfree ball and the Raiders' Ken Stabler was intercepted seven times.

That left side was manned by guard Gene Upshaw and tackle Art Shell, who opened gaping holes for Mark van Eeghen and Clarence Davis. They teamed for 187 yards and had a touchdown run apiece. Stabler started the scoring with a 21-yard TD pass to Cliff Branch and Oakland had a 24-0 lead before Denver did anything.

Cowboys 37, Lions 0

Meanwhile, Dallas did anything it pleased and Detroit, as its score indicated, did nothing. The Lions' biggest problem was coming in against a Cowboy team that woke up after last week's sluggish performance.

"We are more intense now than our Super Bowl teams," said Cowboys safety Cliff Harris. "This is the most intense I've ever seen us in the regular season."

But Tom Landry, ever the cool coach, downplayed the runaway. "We're still not a solid football team yet. We need more consistency," he said ... which left Detroit Coach Tommy Hudspeth almost speechless.

"All I can say is that Dallas is a tremendous football team," he gasped. The Lions didn't even cross midfield until the fourth period.

Staubach clicked on passes of 14 yards to Billy Joe Dupree, 18 yards to Scott Laidlaw and 1 yard to Jay Saldi. Herrera's field goals covered 21, 45 and 30 yards.

Colts 31, Steelers 21

The last time the Steelers visited Baltimore, Terry Bradshaw passed for three touchdowns in a 40-14 playoff romp. This time it was Bert Jones' turn. The Colts' quarterback came through with scoring strikes of 26 yards to Roosevelt Leaks and 13 yards to Lydell Mitchell and a 6-yard TD run of his own.

The Baltimore defense kicked in with five interceptions and Pittsburgh kicked itself around with 112 yards in penalties.

Bears 26, Packers 0

Walter Payton's 205 yards rushing tied Gale Sayers' 1968 club record for a single game — and Chicago's popular running back was delighted he never got the 206th.

"I didn't want to break Sayers' record because Sayers is a super guy. What's a record? I just wanted to win the game," he said after scoring on touchdown runs of 6 and 1 yards and setting up Johnny Musso's 3yard scoring run in the rout of the Packers.

"Walter is super every game, but we wanted to make this a truly great game for him," rookie tackle Ted Albrecht of Chicago said. "The coaches wanted to take him out when he had 196, but we asked them if he could carry for one more play. He did, and he got it."

Saints 27, Rams 26

Rich Szaro's field goal with three minutes to play — a 31yarder that brushed the right upright and wobbled through the goalposts — gave the Saints their upset over Los Angeles.

Pat Haden threw for two Rams touchdowns and Tony Galbreath ran for a pair for New Orleans. The difference in the game was a missed extra point, when a center snap sailed over the LA holder's head.

Seahawks 56, Bills 17

Seattle, which won two games last year, won its second of 1977 and it was by far the Seahawks' most impressive game. Jim Zorn, sidelined for a month with a damaged knee, fired four touchdown passes, two to Steve Largent, and ran for another score in the rout of the Bills.

Virtually nothing went right for Buffalo. O.J. Simpson, a questionable starter because of knee problems, sat out the second half after getting only 32 yards in the first two periods.

Thompson wins Pensacola

"This just proves to me that I can do it again," Thompson said Sunday after his solid, three-under-par 68 had produced a two-stroke victory in the Pensacola Open, the last official event of the long pro golf tour.

"Under the circumstances, having been down so long, I really think this is a bigger thrill than winning the first one."

Thompson, now carrying a solid 210 pounds, capped his comeback with a 50-foot birdie putt on the final hole and sent his putter flipping high into the air with the second victory of his career. He won it with a 268 total, 16 under par on the 6,549yard Pensacola Country Club course.

It didn't come easily, however. He started the final round with a two-shot lead, blew that with a couple of early bogeys, got the strokes back with birdies on the next two holes, then watched rookie Curtis Strange, playing in front of him, mount a determined bid.

The 22-year-old Strange, a former national collegiate champ from Wake Forest, reeled off a string of five consecutive birdies that started with a chip-in on the eighth hole. That pulled him into a tie for the lead.

"I thought I was in the driver's seat then," he said.

But he made bogey six on the 14th, putting his third shot in a bunker. "That was the turning point," said Strange, who finished with a 68 and a 270 total. He watched while Thompson scored his spectacular birdie on the final hole.

"He finished like a winner," Strange said. "He won it. I didn't give it to him."

J.C. Snead came on with a 67 and took third at 272. Tied at 273 were Bill Kratzert, Butch Baird and Fuzzy Zoeller. Kratzert had a last-round 65, Baird 67 and Zoeller 69.

Thompson collected $25,000 from the total purse of $125,000 and pushed his season's earnings to $107,293.

Much of the fun along the Grand River is fishing, as shown by these trotliners and the nice channel catfish they just caught, but Department of Conservation fisheries biologist found many other activities in a year-long study of the north Missouri stream. Fishing, sightseeing and passive leisure (i.e. "loafing") accounted for about half the river use. (Department of Conservation photo)

Second in Command

By DALE FORBIS
Daily Standard Sportswriter

The Southeast Missouri State Indians have converted another disbeliever. Mike Marsh, a Daily Standard writer and SeMo alumni, has continually insisted that this year's Indian team was something special. It was easy to chalk the win over Delta St. up to a fluke, etc., but add to that the win on Saturday over Northeast and coach Jim Lohr's team emerges as the favorite for the MIAA title this year. We believe.

Sikestonian's Jerry Dement and Shane Waggoner are a big part of SeMo's defensive success and we hope the focus on these two young men will encourage other Bulldogs to attend the local university. Lohr is a good coach, who has a record of success on the high school and college level. The most important asset he has is his awareness of the talent of district players.

In the past the Indian roster has been dominated by St. Louis area players (still is, to a lesser extent) and little effort was put into recruiting in this area. For the first time, the coaches (not only in football) seem to be aware of the need for more area players to be listed on the team rosters – in order for people in this area to identify with the Indian teams.

Just conjecture, but: Look for the baseball Cardinals to jump feet first into the re-entry draft, pick everyone in sight, then sign nobody. The only real need the team has, other than one more starter pitcher, is power in the outfield. The best prospects are Richie Zisk and Larry Hisle.

What team has indicated the most interest in those two? The New York Yankees. And the Birds can hardly compete with the World Champs monetarily, or otherwise.

It would be nice to see St. Louis acquire a righty hitter with some pop in his bat. Also, another good pitcher would be welcomed.

It will be interesting to see if the Cards pick Rawly Eastwick in the draft after his "performance" wearing a St. Louis uniform. A good guess on that point would be "yes." Picking Eastwick wouldn't cost St. Louis a choice since he was the club's property this past summer. Whether Devine would make any real attempt to sign him is another story.

The Chief has gone on record as supporting the Delta C-7 Charters as the area's top roundball team when that sport starts later this month and it is hard to dispute his belief. The Charters will have so much talent back from last year's regional winner. But, this corner will have to lean toward the Richland Rebs.

As long ago as it was, it is impossible to forget the game last winter when the Bulldogs ran into a rampaging Rebel team and got blown away by 40 points.

The Rebs have mucho talent.

On the subject of the Bulldogs: Coach Bud Spears makes little attempt to cover his enthusiasm for the 1977-78 edition of the Sikeston Bulldogs and it is easy to see why. The Dogs will have a young, dynamic team this year and it should be a pleasant experience for the fans and coaches to watch this talented group mature and grow.

It is doubtful if the team will win 20 games, like two years ago. The schedule is shorter for one thing. But, the speed and defensive ability present lends the potential for outstanding things in the season to come.

Of course, they could go 3-and-20. This reporter has observed only two or three practices. But, the players' attitude is a tangible object that will be a real asset as the season goes on.

If they aren't blowing smoke.

We'll get into the other winter sports soon. Wrestling should be strong again with (just an educated guess) Linzie Lambert leading the Bulldog grapplers. Another Standard reporter observed a girls' basketball practice recently and noted that this year's team should be much improved in the shooting department, as well as in the fundamentals that last year's players were forced to pick up during a learning season. It would be easier to talk intelligently about the wrestling and girls' basketball after observing their practices.

From time to time we make mistakes in the statistics reported in the Standard in the Bulldog game stories and, although they are corrected in the season stats being compiled for the team, the revised figures are rarely acknowledged. Earlier in the season, in a game with Charleston, we had six yards too many on the Bulldog side and six too few for Charleston. Both teams had a number 24 carrying the ball and it did seem a little odd, when checking later, that the Bulldogs' Mike Shell had a carry right in the middle of a Charleston drive.

David Ziegenhorn has been recording out stats during the past year and doing an outstanding job. Zig was a stat man during his four years at Ole Miss and it is a comforting thought knowing the Bulldog stats are as accurate as is possible. (Most of the mistakes come when I compile the play-by-play sheet I receive.)

Of course, using a man with his talents to keep stats is a classic case of "over-kill," but this will be rectified in the near future.

"Changes are forthcoming," we say in a mysterious voice, "and explanations will come soon."

Seattle Slew to continue racing

AP Special Correspondent

Cadillacs with gold "Seattle Slew" bumper stickers are lining up again in the barn area at Belmont Park. Hard boots hug the track rails just to watch the bay colt do his morning jog. The curious push close the guard rail at Barn 54, straining for a look at the horse that dominated the headlines in the spring and early summer.

"He can and he will," insists Dr. Jim Hill, the veterinarian and co-owner whose keen judgment of horseflesh was responsible for plucking Seattle Slew from a collection of bandy-legged equine orphans at the Lexington, Ky., yearling sales three years ago.

Purchased for a bargain $17,-500 by Hill and Washington lumberman Mickey Taylor, the mahogany thunderbolt went on to sweep the Triple Crown — the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes — and become the first horse in history to do so without losing a single race.

Winner of nine straight races without defeat, setting track records and matching the pace of the great Secretariat, Seattle Slew stood at that moment at the pinnacle of all horse racing.

What next?

Karen Taylor, Mickey's vivacious wife, made the decision: "Why have a horse if you can't watch him run?" she said. "He has given us so much pleasure. We will continue to race him."

Buoyed by national acclaim and feeling their colt was almost unbeatable, the Taylors and Hills decided to send Slew into the $316,400 Swaps Stakes at Hollywood Park July 3.

For millions of fickle track buffs, the Seattle Slew bubble burst. The 3-year-old wonder horse was brought back to his quarters at Belmont where he has been languishing in his stall, his competitive edge dulled and his future in doubt.

Last weekend, activity increased around Barn 54. Hill was there at daybreak. Turner was busier and more relaxed than usual. Seattle Slew, who hadn't been breezed all summer, was being taken out for gallops around the track. Racing plans were being formalized.

"Definitely we're going to race this horse this winter and also next year. After that, we'll put him in stud. This is a great horse and he will prove it again."

"Ridiculous," says Hill. "The people who breed horses are not naive. They're intelligent and sophisticated. They can see this horse's record—a track record in his 3-year-old debut at Hialeah, the Triple Crown, nine straight victories. One defeat does not destroy a horse."

CLEVELAND (AP) — Billy Andrews, a linebacker for Kansas City and a former member of the Cleveland Browns, was one of the few Chiefs able to take Sunday's 44-7 loss philosophically.

"The Browns did exactly what we expected them to do, exactly," he said with a shrug. "They've been doing it to everybody."

What the Browns did was smother Kansas City's offense and go over and through the bewildered visitors for a total of 544 yards and a club record 34 first downs, with Greg Pruitt and Mike Pruitt doing most of the damage.

The victory, combined with Pittsburgh's loss at Baltimore, gave Cleveland, 5-2, sole possession of first piece in the AFC Central Division.

Greg Pruitt, the much-injured catalyst in Cleveland's offense, jitterbugged his way to 153 yards in 18 carries, capping the spectacular effort with a 78yard touchdown burst late in the third period.

That run, the longest in Pruitt's five-year National Football League career, built the margin to an insurmountable 37-0 and also boosted Pruitt over 500 yards rushing for the season.

Mike Pruitt took over for injured fullback Cleo Miller in the second period and added 96 yards in 20 carries, including a one-yard touchdown dive set up by the other Pruitt's 29-yard dash with a screen pass.

Almost unnoticed during Cleveland's domination of the error-prone Chiefs, 1-6, was quarterback Brian Sipe's passing, which netted 200 yards and a touchdown before reserve Dave Mays took over late in the third period.

Sipe put Cleveland ahead to stay early, taking advantage of the first of three Kansas City fumbles to move the Browns 47 yards for their first touchdown on a seven-yard pass to Gary Parris. Parris later completed Cleveland's scoring on a twoyard reception of a Mays pass.

In between, Don Cockroft methodically raised his string to seven straight successful field goals with boots of 29, 34 and 27 yards and free safety Thom Darden returned a pass interception 18 yards for the other Cleveland touchdown.

"I think it's probably the best overall game we've played in the three years I've been here," said Cleveland Coach Forrest Gregg. "I'd have to say — I would have to finally admit — that the team is where I want it.

"We're 5-2 and we have to play the rest of the season the way we did today," he added.

Kansas City Coach Paul Wiggin, also a former Browns player, was distraught after the devastating loss, in which the Chiefs averted a shutout on Mike Livingston's 22-yard pass to John Brockington with 1:19 remaining.

"This was as bad a situation as I have been in in football," Wiggin said angrily. "The game was a source of embarrassment. We didn't play well at any one point. There were no bright spots. This was a disaster."

Turnabout was fair play — or perhaps it was the turnovers.

"Turnovers were the difference. We had eight of them the last time we met, but we didn't have any this time and were able to keep the upper hand," Oakland Coach John Madden said after his Raiders, literally mugged by Denver 30-7 a couple of weeks ago, turned around and broke the Broncos' backs 24-14 to bring the Mile High City back to earth.

The National Conference, meanwhile, now has the only unbeaten team. The Dallas Cowboys, off to their best start since the team was formed in 1960, mauled Detroit 37-0 on Roger Staubach's three touchdown passes and Efren Herrera's three field goals.

In other National Football League action it was Baltimore 31, Pittsburgh 21; Chicago 26, Green Bay 0; New Orleans 27, Los Angeles 26; San Francisco 20, Tampa Bay 10; Seattle 56, Buffalo 17; San Diego 14, Miami 13; New England 24, New York Jets 13; Washington 23, Philadelphia 17; Cleveland 44, Kansas City 7; Minnesota 14, Atlanta 7, and Cincinnati 13, Houston 10 in overtime. The New York Giants visit St. Louis tonight.

Red Miller, who had the Broncos flying high in his first season as Denver's head coach, could only applaud Oakland's solid, basic play.

"They used their weapons to the utmost," he said. "They had great blocking in running to their left side ... and our two turnovers made a difference. It was just the opposite of what happened in Oakland" when Denver played virtually errorfree ball and the Raiders' Ken Stabler was intercepted seven times.

That left side was manned by guard Gene Upshaw and tackle Art Shell, who opened gaping holes for Mark van Eeghen and Clarence Davis. They teamed for 187 yards and had a touchdown run apiece. Stabler started the scoring with a 21-yard TD pass to Cliff Branch and Oakland had a 24-0 lead before Denver did anything.

Cowboys 37, Lions 0

Meanwhile, Dallas did anything it pleased and Detroit, as its score indicated, did nothing. The Lions' biggest problem was coming in against a Cowboy team that woke up after last week's sluggish performance.

"We are more intense now than our Super Bowl teams," said Cowboys safety Cliff Harris. "This is the most intense I've ever seen us in the regular season."

But Tom Landry, ever the cool coach, downplayed the runaway. "We're still not a solid football team yet. We need more consistency," he said ... which left Detroit Coach Tommy Hudspeth almost speechless.

"All I can say is that Dallas is a tremendous football team," he gasped. The Lions didn't even cross midfield until the fourth period.

Staubach clicked on passes of 14 yards to Billy Joe Dupree, 18 yards to Scott Laidlaw and 1 yard to Jay Saldi. Herrera's field goals covered 21, 45 and 30 yards.

Colts 31, Steelers 21

The last time the Steelers visited Baltimore, Terry Bradshaw passed for three touchdowns in a 40-14 playoff romp. This time it was Bert Jones' turn. The Colts' quarterback came through with scoring strikes of 26 yards to Roosevelt Leaks and 13 yards to Lydell Mitchell and a 6-yard TD run of his own.

The Baltimore defense kicked in with five interceptions and Pittsburgh kicked itself around with 112 yards in penalties.

Bears 26, Packers 0

Walter Payton's 205 yards rushing tied Gale Sayers' 1968 club record for a single game — and Chicago's popular running back was delighted he never got the 206th.

"I didn't want to break Sayers' record because Sayers is a super guy. What's a record? I just wanted to win the game," he said after scoring on touchdown runs of 6 and 1 yards and setting up Johnny Musso's 3yard scoring run in the rout of the Packers.

"Walter is super every game, but we wanted to make this a truly great game for him," rookie tackle Ted Albrecht of Chicago said. "The coaches wanted to take him out when he had 196, but we asked them if he could carry for one more play. He did, and he got it."

Saints 27, Rams 26

Rich Szaro's field goal with three minutes to play — a 31yarder that brushed the right upright and wobbled through the goalposts — gave the Saints their upset over Los Angeles.

Pat Haden threw for two Rams touchdowns and Tony Galbreath ran for a pair for New Orleans. The difference in the game was a missed extra point, when a center snap sailed over the LA holder's head.

Seahawks 56, Bills 17

Seattle, which won two games last year, won its second of 1977 and it was by far the Seahawks' most impressive game. Jim Zorn, sidelined for a month with a damaged knee, fired four touchdown passes, two to Steve Largent, and ran for another score in the rout of the Bills.

Virtually nothing went right for Buffalo. O.J. Simpson, a questionable starter because of knee problems, sat out the second half after getting only 32 yards in the first two periods.

Thompson wins Pensacola

"This just proves to me that I can do it again," Thompson said Sunday after his solid, three-under-par 68 had produced a two-stroke victory in the Pensacola Open, the last official event of the long pro golf tour.

"Under the circumstances, having been down so long, I really think this is a bigger thrill than winning the first one."

Thompson, now carrying a solid 210 pounds, capped his comeback with a 50-foot birdie putt on the final hole and sent his putter flipping high into the air with the second victory of his career. He won it with a 268 total, 16 under par on the 6,549yard Pensacola Country Club course.

It didn't come easily, however. He started the final round with a two-shot lead, blew that with a couple of early bogeys, got the strokes back with birdies on the next two holes, then watched rookie Curtis Strange, playing in front of him, mount a determined bid.

The 22-year-old Strange, a former national collegiate champ from Wake Forest, reeled off a string of five consecutive birdies that started with a chip-in on the eighth hole. That pulled him into a tie for the lead.

"I thought I was in the driver's seat then," he said.

But he made bogey six on the 14th, putting his third shot in a bunker. "That was the turning point," said Strange, who finished with a 68 and a 270 total. He watched while Thompson scored his spectacular birdie on the final hole.

"He finished like a winner," Strange said. "He won it. I didn't give it to him."

J.C. Snead came on with a 67 and took third at 272. Tied at 273 were Bill Kratzert, Butch Baird and Fuzzy Zoeller. Kratzert had a last-round 65, Baird 67 and Zoeller 69.

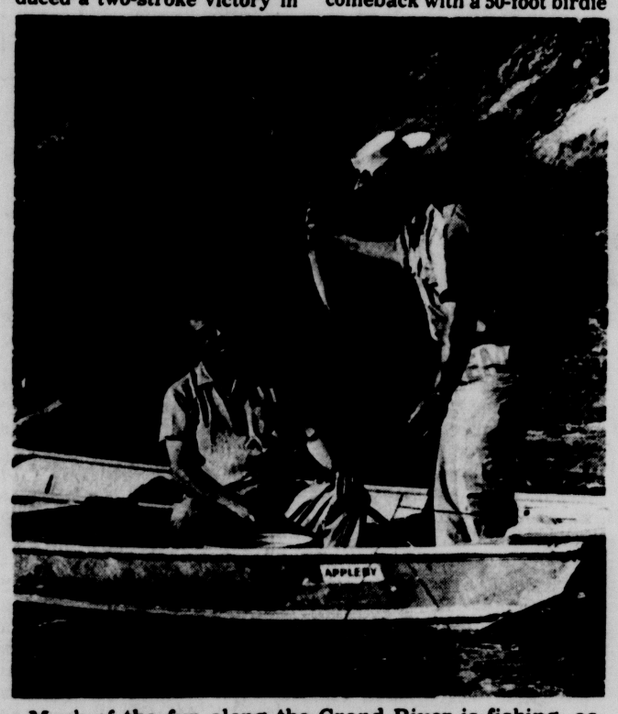
Thompson collected $25,000 from the total purse of $125,000 and pushed his season's earnings to $107,293.



Much of the fun along the Grand River is fishing, as shown by these trotliners and the nice channel catfish they just caught, but Department of Conservation fisheries biologist found many other activities in a year-long study of the north Missouri stream. Fishing, sightseeing and passive leisure (i.e. "loafing") accounted for about half the river use. (Department of Conservation photo)

Second in Command

By DALE FORBIS
Daily Standard Sportswriter

The Southeast Missouri State Indians have converted another disbeliever. Mike Marsh, a Daily Standard writer and SeMo alumni, has continually insisted that this year's Indian team was something special. It was easy to chalk the win over Delta St. up to a fluke, etc., but add to that the win on Saturday over Northeast and coach Jim Lohr's team emerges as the favorite for the MIAA title this year. We believe.

Sikestonian's Jerry Dement and Shane Waggoner are a big part of SeMo's defensive success and we hope the focus on these two young men will encourage other Bulldogs to attend the local university. Lohr is a good coach, who has a record of success on the high school and college level. The most important asset he has is his awareness of the talent of district players.

In the past the Indian roster has been dominated by St. Louis area players (still is, to a lesser extent) and little effort was put into recruiting in this area. For the first time, the coaches (not only in football) seem to be aware of the need for more area players to be listed on the team rosters – in order for people in this area to identify with the Indian teams.

Just conjecture, but: Look for the baseball Cardinals to jump feet first into the re-entry draft, pick everyone in sight, then sign nobody. The only real need the team has, other than one more starter pitcher, is power in the outfield. The best prospects are Richie Zisk and Larry Hisle.

What team has indicated the most interest in those two? The New York Yankees. And the Birds can hardly compete with the World Champs monetarily, or otherwise.

It would be nice to see St. Louis acquire a righty hitter with some pop in his bat. Also, another good pitcher would be welcomed.

It will be interesting to see if the Cards pick Rawly Eastwick in the draft after his "performance" wearing a St. Louis uniform. A good guess on that point would be "yes." Picking Eastwick wouldn't cost St. Louis a choice since he was the club's property this past summer. Whether Devine would make any real attempt to sign him is another story.

The Chief has gone on record as supporting the Delta C-7 Charters as the area's top roundball team when that sport starts later this month and it is hard to dispute his belief. The Charters will have so much talent back from last year's regional winner. But, this corner will have to lean toward the Richland Rebs.

As long ago as it was, it is impossible to forget the game last winter when the Bulldogs ran into a rampaging Rebel team and got blown away by 40 points.

The Rebs have mucho talent.

On the subject of the Bulldogs: Coach Bud Spears makes little attempt to cover his enthusiasm for the 1977-78 edition of the Sikeston Bulldogs and it is easy to see why. The Dogs will have a young, dynamic team this year and it should be a pleasant experience for the fans and coaches to watch this talented group mature and grow.

It is doubtful if the team will win 20 games, like two years ago. The schedule is shorter for one thing. But, the speed and defensive ability present lends the potential for outstanding things in the season to come.

Of course, they could go 3-and-20. This reporter has observed only two or three practices. But, the players' attitude is a tangible object that will be a real asset as the season goes on.

If they aren't blowing smoke.

We'll get into the other winter sports soon. Wrestling should be strong again with (just an educated guess) Linzie Lambert leading the Bulldog grapplers. Another Standard reporter observed a girls' basketball practice recently and noted that this year's team should be much improved in the shooting department, as well as in the fundamentals that last year's players were forced to pick up during a learning season. It would be easier to talk intelligently about the wrestling and girls' basketball after observing their practices.

From time to time we make mistakes in the statistics reported in the Standard in the Bulldog game stories and, although they are corrected in the season stats being compiled for the team, the revised figures are rarely acknowledged. Earlier in the season, in a game with Charleston, we had six yards too many on the Bulldog side and six too few for Charleston. Both teams had a number 24 carrying the ball and it did seem a little odd, when checking later, that the Bulldogs' Mike Shell had a carry right in the middle of a Charleston drive.

David Ziegenhorn has been recording out stats during the past year and doing an outstanding job. Zig was a stat man during his four years at Ole Miss and it is a comforting thought knowing the Bulldog stats are as accurate as is possible. (Most of the mistakes come when I compile the play-by-play sheet I receive.)

Of course, using a man with his talents to keep stats is a classic case of "over-kill," but this will be rectified in the near future.

"Changes are forthcoming," we say in a mysterious voice, "and explanations will come soon."

Seattle Slew to continue racing

AP Special Correspondent

Cadillacs with gold "Seattle Slew" bumper stickers are lining up again in the barn area at Belmont Park. Hard boots hug the track rails just to watch the bay colt do his morning jog. The curious push close the guard rail at Barn 54, straining for a look at the horse that dominated the headlines in the spring and early summer.

"He can and he will," insists Dr. Jim Hill, the veterinarian and co-owner whose keen judgment of horseflesh was responsible for plucking Seattle Slew from a collection of bandy-legged equine orphans at the Lexington, Ky., yearling sales three years ago.

Purchased for a bargain $17,-500 by Hill and Washington lumberman Mickey Taylor, the mahogany thunderbolt went on to sweep the Triple Crown — the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes — and become the first horse in history to do so without losing a single race.

Winner of nine straight races without defeat, setting track records and matching the pace of the great Secretariat, Seattle Slew stood at that moment at the pinnacle of all horse racing.

What next?

Karen Taylor, Mickey's vivacious wife, made the decision: "Why have a horse if you can't watch him run?" she said. "He has given us so much pleasure. We will continue to race him."

Buoyed by national acclaim and feeling their colt was almost unbeatable, the Taylors and Hills decided to send Slew into the $316,400 Swaps Stakes at Hollywood Park July 3.

For millions of fickle track buffs, the Seattle Slew bubble burst. The 3-year-old wonder horse was brought back to his quarters at Belmont where he has been languishing in his stall, his competitive edge dulled and his future in doubt.

Last weekend, activity increased around Barn 54. Hill was there at daybreak. Turner was busier and more relaxed than usual. Seattle Slew, who hadn't been breezed all summer, was being taken out for gallops around the track. Racing plans were being formalized.

"Definitely we're going to race this horse this winter and also next year. After that, we'll put him in stud. This is a great horse and he will prove it again."

"Ridiculous," says Hill. "The people who breed horses are not naive. They're intelligent and sophisticated. They can see this horse's record—a track record in his 3-year-old debut at Hialeah, the Triple Crown, nine straight victories. One defeat does not destroy a horse."

THE BUCKNER RAGSDALE CO

Stewart's catch key to win

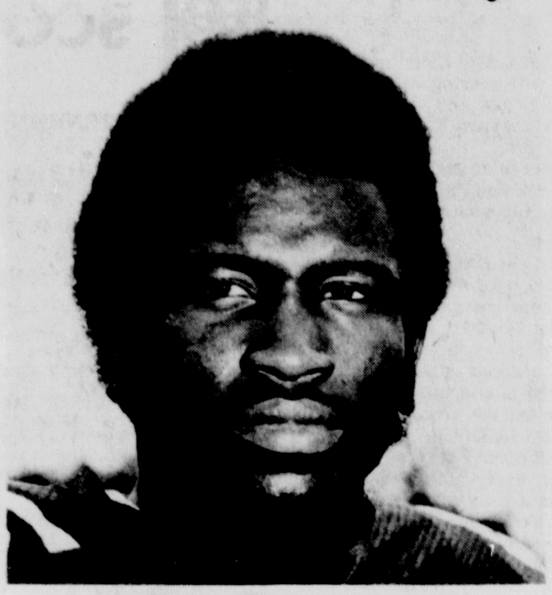
BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Ever-confident Pete Woods, throwing the ball better than at any time in his college career, thought he answered some questions about who is the best quarterback in the Big Eight.

"I guess people like to compare me to Jeff Knapple," said Woods, Missouri's senior quarterback. "Today, I think I played better than he did."

Most of the 52,908 fans at Folsom Field agreed Saturday. Knapple, suffering through a poor passing afternoon, was frequently booed by the hometown Colorado fans. Some of them screamed, "We want Cyphers," indicating backup Pete Cyphers.

Knapple got off to the better start, scoring on a short run and firing a 52-yard touchdown pass to Steve Gaunty that staked Colorado to a 14-0 lead in the first quarter. But it was Missouri the rest of the way as Woods and a stout defense drew raves in the Tigers' 24-14 triumph.

The victory kept Missouri in the Big Eight title picture, boosting the Tigers' conference record to 2-2 and overall mark to 3-5. Colorado, which has sustained a tie and two losses in its last three outings, slumped to 1-2-1 in the league and 5-2-1 overall.



Joe Stewart

"When we get our game together and have this kind of confidence, there's no one that can beat us," said Woods after the upset. "Our defense played as well as I've ever seen."

The Tigers fumbled the ball away three times in their own territory in the first quarter, but Colorado was able to get only a touchdown out of the turnovers.

After Knapple's bomb to Gaunty, the Tigers went to work on their first scoring drive. Tailback Earl Gant's 40yard run helped set up Woods' short-yardage plunge with 12:04 left in the second quarter.

Missouri took the second half kickoff and marched 78 yards for the tying score, with Woods' 33-yard pass to flanker Joe Stewart capping the drive. "Stewart's catch was the key," said Missouri Coach Al Onofrio. "That's what turned it around."

Woods added that "anytime we can get Stewart one-on-one, it's a good bet he'll catch it, and he did."

Later in the quarter, the Tigers, running mainly behind the blocks of 270-pound left tackle James Taylor, drove 57 yards for the clinching score. Tight end Kellen Winslow caught the 8-yard TD pass from Woods to make it 21-14 with 11:38 left in the contest. Freshman Jeff Brockhaus tacked on a 48-yard field goal in the final minute.

"We had the opportunities, but we just couldn't get it in," said Colorado Coach Bill Mallory, who again denied the press access to the players' dressing room. "Outside of (James) Mayberry's running, we didn't generate much of a running game. And our passing game didn't go well. We're going to have to sit down and regroup."

Mayberry led all rushers with 136 yards on 26 carries. Knapple completed just five of 18 passes and was intercepted three times, while Woods hit on 14 of 29 and was picked off once.

Gray always ready for NY

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jack used a beanstalk and an ax to trip up his giant. Little Mel Gray, a wide receiver for the St. Louis Cardinals, uses his legs.

It's no fairy tale.

During the years, Gray, a 5foot-nine, 175 pound speedster, has run through, over, and around the New York Giants, who meet the Cardinals in a National League Football game tonight.

In seven professional seasons, Gray has stung the Giants badly, catching 30 passes for 759 yards. And of his 36 career touchdowns, ten have come against New York defenders.

"For some reason, the Giants seem to ignore me sometimes," Gray said as he prepared for the contest, which will be nationally televised.

In his first game against the Giants, Gray caught TD passes of 64 and 64 yards. That was back in 1971, when he was fresh out of the University of Missouri, where he made a name for himself as a sprinter. Running the 100-yard dash, it wasn't unusual for him to break the tape in 9.2 seconds.

Despite the speed, though, Gray still didn't think he had a chance to play professional football. He was too short.

It wasn't until he opened a newspaper that he learned he had been drafted by the Cardinals. "The scouts' word on me wasn't very good," he remembered. "They said I had brick hands. They said I couldn't catch a cold. I was supposed to be like another sprinter who didn't make it, Jim Hines. You know, a man with nine-second feet and nine-minute hands."

Since then he's discovered the Giants and has been slaying them faithfully.

In 1973, he scored four touchdowns against New York, and during a Giant-Cardinal game in the 1975 season, his best day as a pro, he caught seven passes for 187 yards and two touchdowns.

District tourney starts tonight

ESSEX — Sikeston's girls volleyball team, second-place finishers in the recent Lilbourn Invitational tournament, will take on Oran tonight in the first round of the District 10 tournament at Richland High School.

The match for coach Jane Merrick's team will start at 8 p.m. The winner of the Oran-Sikeston match will meet third-seeded Bloomfield Wednesday night at 7:45

Other games tonight pit Chaffee against Dexter at 6:30 and University High against Notre Dame at 7:15 p.m.

Tide wins 37-7 but Bear Bryant is down

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

You've got to feel for Bear Bryant.

"I think they hurt us more than any team I can remember with their passing attack," the veteran Alabama coach said following Saturday night's meeting with Mississippi State. "We obviously need a lot of work on pass defense."

And now would anyone care to guess what score Alabama lost by? What's that, you say, they won 37-7? What about it, Bear?

"Well, a couple of times they had a guy open for a touchdown and didn't get it to him."

Oh.

When second-ranked Alabama wasn't allowing Mississippi State to pass for 227 yards, the Crimson Tide's fleet and deep corps of runners was rushing for 311 yards, starting with Tony Nathan's 59-yard touchdown gallop in the first period.

The victory kept 'Bama atop the Southeastern Conference with a 4-0 record to 3-0 for both seventh-ranked Kentucky, which blanked Virginia Tech 32-0, and unheralded Auburn, which upset No. 18 Florida 29-14.

Alabama is the odds-on favorite to represent the SEC in the Sugar Bowl — Kentucky is ineligible — but Bryant has other things on his mind first.

"I haven't thought about it at all," he said. "I've got enough to worry about LSU next week."

Yup, you've got to feel for Bear Bryant.

Meanwhile, top-rated Texas slugged No. 14 Texas Tech 26-0, third-ranked Ohio State battered Wisconsin 42-0, No. 4 Oklahoma trounced Kansas State 42-7, fifth-ranked Notre Dame crushed Navy 43-10, sixth-ranked Michigan whipped Iowa 23-6, eighth-rated Arkansas downed Rice 30-7, No. 9 Penn State mauled Miami of Florida 49-7 and No. 10 Southern Cal bowed to California 17-14.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Texas A&M outscored Southern Methodist 38-21, No. 12 Nebraska dumped Oklahoma State 31-14, No. 13 Pitt creamed Tulane 48-0, Missouri upset No. 15 Colorado 24-14, No. 16 Clemson defeated Wake Forest 26-0, No. 17 Brigham Young beat Arizona 34-14, Indiana shocked No. 19 Minnesota 34-22 and No. 20 Florida State turned back North Texas State 35-14.

Texas used a 57-yard pass play from Randy McEachern to Olympic sprinter Johnny "Lam" Jones, two touchdowns by Johnny "Ham" Jones and field goals of 60 and 35 yards by Russell Erxleben to turn back Texas Tech. Earl Campbell didn't score but rushed for 116 yards and moved into 12th place on the all-time NCAA list.

"That was a tough football game," said Coach Fred Akers. "I was glad to see Ham Jones running and scoring and Earl had another great day and now Houston ... they are next."

Minnesota, last week's 16-0 conqueror of No. 1-ranked Michigan, had a short stay in the Top Twenty. The Golden Gophers made it to the No. 19 spot last week but Indiana took care of that with fourth-quarter touchdown runs by Scott Arnett, Ric Enis and Tony D'Orazio.

"There's always a letdown after a game like last week's," said Minny Coach Cal Stoll. "We wanted to play, but we were just going through the motions."

Another newcomer to the rankings was Florida State and the surprising Seminoles undoubtedly will stay there after boosting their record to 6-1 by trimming North Texas State, which also came into the game with just one defeat.

The score was tied 7-7 but Ivory Joe Hunter returned an interception 19 yards late in the second period for a touchdown and Willie Jones recovered a North Texas fumble in the end zone 44 seconds later as Florida State nailed down its first winning season in five years.

Meanwhile, nose guard Ron Simmons, only a freshman, sacked North Texas quarterbacks five times for 51 yards in losses.

"Ron Simmons kept making the big play," said Coach Bobby Bowden. "I never saw as many big plays as he made tonight."

But it was a disastrous weekend for the Florida Gators, another good bet to disappear from the Top Twenty. Auburn got an SEC record five field goals from Jorge Portela while sophomore Charlie Trotman passed for 177 yards and a touchdown in his first varsity start.

"I was proud of the team for sucking it up and playing hard when a lot of people had given up on us," said Coach Doug Barfield.

Ohio State came out throwing against Wisconsin and Rod Gerald heaved a 79-yard scoring bomb to Jim Harrell on the second play of the game. "We thought they were crowding us," Woody Hayes explained.

Thomas Lott scored three times as Oklahoma rushed for 483 yards and destroyed Kansas State and Joe Montana passed for 260 yards and defensive end Ross Browner set a Notre Dame career record of 295 tackles as the Fighting Irish torpedoed Navy.

Another career mark was set by Michigan quarterback Rick Leach, who tossed his 23rd, 24th and 25th touchdown passes — the three scoring aerials tied a school record — as the Wolverines defeated Iowa.

Two scoring passes and a 45yard TD run by Derrick Ramsey paced Kentucky over Virginia Tech and Michael Forrest scored twice to lead Arkansas over Rice.

The highlight was a school record 97-yard gallop by Greg King, who rushed for 212 yards on 19 carries.

Big Red's playoff chances listed as 'slight' by Coryell

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Either the New York Giants or the St. Louis Cardinals, who once both tottered on the brink of early extinction, will bounce back into the National Football League's title picture tonight.

The heated rivals, who clash on national television, are two of only seven teams in the National Conference scarred by three or fewer defeats.

St. Louis' Don Coryell, the coach of an entry which matches New York's 3-3 record, did not dispute those who previously counted his Cards out of the running for an NFL postseason berth.

"You look at it on paper and you'd have to agree," Coryell said. "People would have to say that any 3-3 team has a very slight chance to make the playoffs. But that doesn't mean that one of them won't make it. Probably one of them will."

St. Louis and New York, until boosted by Sunday's NFC results, were two of four alsorans at the .500 level vying with faint hope for a wild card berth behind division peaders Dallas, now 7-0, and Minnesota, 5-2, and co-leaders Los Angeles and Atlanta, each 4-3.

But defeats suffered by Detroit, 3-4, and the Rams and Falcons have thrust them back into the playoff sweepstakes along with the Washington Redskins, 4-3, and Chicago Bears, 3-4.

"I think this year if we're 10-4 it will be good enough. But it means that we'd have to win seven out of eight games," Coryell had earlier speculated. "You try to flip a coin some time. You don't have one chance in a hundred for it to come up heads seven times."

The Cards and Giants, in addition to benefiting from the scrambled wild card race, have bolstered themselves through recently improved performances.

A bristling defense has rallied New York from its 1-3 start. And St. Louis, by utilizing fully the proven talents of Terry Metcalf, has shoved its explosive offense into high gear.

Master Anglers quality

Lawrence Peters, California, is both. Peters caught the big fish in Binder Lake near here and thus joined the Master Angler Club, sponsored by the Department of Conservation for fishermen whose catches exceed rigorous minimum weight standards for the species.

Alvin Beiter, St. Louis, also had a fine channel cat catch that weighed 19 pounds, 11 ounces.

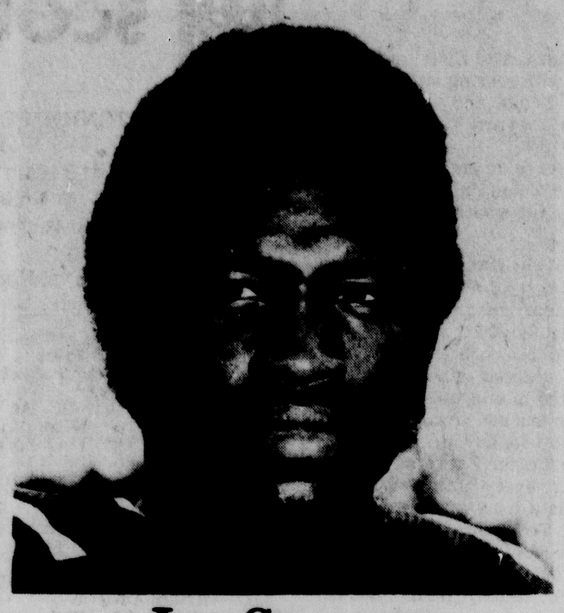
C. Larry McKinney, Springfield, qualified three times with goggle eye (rock bass) that weighed 1:04, 1:02 and 1:01. Jim Thomas, Fair Grove, had a 4:03 smallmouth bass and Eddie Zavadil, St. Louis, had one 3:08.

Gary Wilhelm, St. Louis, had a 3:02 black crappie and Charles Schneider, Ridgedale, added a 2:10 white crappie Master Angler award to his white bass award.

Joe Turner, Springfield, topped the trout list with a 10 pound, 14 ounce rainbow. Bill Jason, Lincoln, Illinois, had one 8:10; Dale Roland, Hollister, one 7:13; David McClain, Branson, 7:12; F. H. Guth, Hollister, one 7:08; Jimmy Dunlap, Douglass, Kansas, 7:02; famed baseball player and manager Hank Bauer, Overland Park, Kansas, 7:01.

Daniel Gifford, Moberly, a seven-year-old, caught a 4:02 chain pickerel in the Eleven Point River to qualify. Larry Pollard, Gallatin, qualified with an eight pound largemouth bass, as did Forrest Wallace, Jefferson City. Gary Speck, Spickard, qualified with an 11 pound, 12 ounce walleye.

Stewart's catch key to win



Joe Stewart

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Ever-confident Pete Woods, throwing the ball better than at any time in his college career, thought he answered some questions about who is the best quarterback in the Big Eight.

"I guess people like to compare me to Jeff Knapple," said Woods, Missouri's senior quarterback. "Today, I think I played better than he did."

Most of the 52,908 fans at Folsom Field agreed Saturday. Knapple, suffering through a poor passing afternoon, was frequently booed by the hometown Colorado fans. Some of them screamed, "We want Cyphers," indicating backup Pete Cyphers.

Knapple got off to the better start, scoring on a short run and firing a 52-yard touchdown pass to Steve Gaunty that staked Colorado to a 14-0 lead in the first quarter. But it was Missouri the rest of the way as Woods and a stout defense drew raves in the Tigers' 24-14 triumph.

The victory kept Missouri in the Big Eight title picture, boosting the Tigers' conference record to 2-2 and overall mark to 3-5. Colorado, which has sustained a tie and two losses in its last three outings, slumped to 1-2-1 in the league and 5-2-1 overall.

"When we get our game together and have this kind of confidence, there's no one that can beat us," said Woods after the upset. "Our defense played as well as I've ever seen."

The Tigers fumbled the ball away three times in their own territory in the first quarter, but Colorado was able to get only a touchdown out of the turnovers.

After Knapple's bomb to Gaunty, the Tigers went to work on their first scoring drive. Tailback Earl Gant's 40yard run helped set up Woods' short-yardage plunge with 12:04 left in the second quarter.

Missouri took the second half kickoff and marched 78 yards for the tying score, with Woods' 33-yard pass to flanker Joe Stewart capping the drive. "Stewart's catch was the key," said Missouri Coach Al Onofrio. "That's what turned it around."

Woods added that "anytime we can get Stewart one-on-one, it's a good bet he'll catch it, and he did."

Later in the quarter, the Tigers, running mainly behind the blocks of 270-pound left tackle James Taylor, drove 57 yards for the clinching score. Tight end Kellen Winslow caught the 8-yard TD pass from Woods to make it 21-14 with 11:38 left in the contest. Freshman Jeff Brockhaus tacked on a 48-yard field goal in the final minute.

"We had the opportunities, but we just couldn't get it in," said Colorado Coach Bill Mallory, who again denied the press access to the players' dressing room. "Outside of (James) Mayberry's running, we didn't generate much of a running game. And our passing game didn't go well. We're going to have to sit down and regroup."

Mayberry led all rushers with 136 yards on 26 carries. Knapple completed just five of 18 passes and was intercepted three times, while Woods hit on 14 of 29 and was picked off once.

Gray always ready for NY

It's no fairy tale.

During the years, Gray, a 5foot-nine, 175 pound speedster, has run through, over, and around the New York Giants, who meet the Cardinals in a National League Football game tonight.

In seven professional seasons, Gray has stung the Giants badly, catching 30 passes for 759 yards. And of his 36 career touchdowns, ten have come against New York defenders.

"For some reason, the Giants seem to ignore me sometimes," Gray said as he prepared for the contest, which will be nationally televised.

In his first game against the Giants, Gray caught TD passes of 64 and 64 yards. That was back in 1971, when he was fresh out of the University of Missouri, where he made a name for himself as a sprinter. Running the 100-yard dash, it wasn't unusual for him to break the tape in 9.2 seconds.

Despite the speed, though, Gray still didn't think he had a chance to play professional football. He was too short.

It wasn't until he opened a newspaper that he learned he had been drafted by the Cardinals. "The scouts' word on me wasn't very good," he remembered. "They said I had brick hands. They said I couldn't catch a cold. I was supposed to be like another sprinter who didn't make it, Jim Hines. You know, a man with nine-second feet and nine-minute hands."

Since then he's discovered the Giants and has been slaying them faithfully.

In 1973, he scored four touchdowns against New York, and during a Giant-Cardinal game in the 1975 season, his best day as a pro, he caught seven passes for 187 yards and two touchdowns.

District tourney starts tonight

ESSEX — Sikeston's girls volleyball team, second-place finishers in the recent Lilbourn Invitational tournament, will take on Oran tonight in the first round of the District 10 tournament at Richland High School.

The match for coach Jane Merrick's team will start at 8 p.m. The winner of the Oran-Sikeston match will meet third-seeded Bloomfield Wednesday night at 7:45

Other games tonight pit Chaffee against Dexter at 6:30 and University High against Notre Dame at 7:15 p.m.

Tide wins 37-7 but Bear Bryant is down

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

You've got to feel for Bear Bryant.

"I think they hurt us more than any team I can remember with their passing attack," the veteran Alabama coach said following Saturday night's meeting with Mississippi State. "We obviously need a lot of work on pass defense."

And now would anyone care to guess what score Alabama lost by? What's that, you say, they won 37-7? What about it, Bear?

"Well, a couple of times they had a guy open for a touchdown and didn't get it to him."

Oh.

When second-ranked Alabama wasn't allowing Mississippi State to pass for 227 yards, the Crimson Tide's fleet and deep corps of runners was rushing for 311 yards, starting with Tony Nathan's 59-yard touchdown gallop in the first period.

The victory kept 'Bama atop the Southeastern Conference with a 4-0 record to 3-0 for both seventh-ranked Kentucky, which blanked Virginia Tech 32-0, and unheralded Auburn, which upset No. 18 Florida 29-14.

Alabama is the odds-on favorite to represent the SEC in the Sugar Bowl — Kentucky is ineligible — but Bryant has other things on his mind first.

"I haven't thought about it at all," he said. "I've got enough to worry about LSU next week."

Yup, you've got to feel for Bear Bryant.

Meanwhile, top-rated Texas slugged No. 14 Texas Tech 26-0, third-ranked Ohio State battered Wisconsin 42-0, No. 4 Oklahoma trounced Kansas State 42-7, fifth-ranked Notre Dame crushed Navy 43-10, sixth-ranked Michigan whipped Iowa 23-6, eighth-rated Arkansas downed Rice 30-7, No. 9 Penn State mauled Miami of Florida 49-7 and No. 10 Southern Cal bowed to California 17-14.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Texas A&M outscored Southern Methodist 38-21, No. 12 Nebraska dumped Oklahoma State 31-14, No. 13 Pitt creamed Tulane 48-0, Missouri upset No. 15 Colorado 24-14, No. 16 Clemson defeated Wake Forest 26-0, No. 17 Brigham Young beat Arizona 34-14, Indiana shocked No. 19 Minnesota 34-22 and No. 20 Florida State turned back North Texas State 35-14.

Texas used a 57-yard pass play from Randy McEachern to Olympic sprinter Johnny "Lam" Jones, two touchdowns by Johnny "Ham" Jones and field goals of 60 and 35 yards by Russell Erxleben to turn back Texas Tech. Earl Campbell didn't score but rushed for 116 yards and moved into 12th place on the all-time NCAA list.

"That was a tough football game," said Coach Fred Akers. "I was glad to see Ham Jones running and scoring and Earl had another great day and now Houston ... they are next."

Minnesota, last week's 16-0 conqueror of No. 1-ranked Michigan, had a short stay in the Top Twenty. The Golden Gophers made it to the No. 19 spot last week but Indiana took care of that with fourth-quarter touchdown runs by Scott Arnett, Ric Enis and Tony D'Orazio.

"There's always a letdown after a game like last week's," said Minny Coach Cal Stoll. "We wanted to play, but we were just going through the motions."

Another newcomer to the rankings was Florida State and the surprising Seminoles undoubtedly will stay there after boosting their record to 6-1 by trimming North Texas State, which also came into the game with just one defeat.

The score was tied 7-7 but Ivory Joe Hunter returned an interception 19 yards late in the second period for a touchdown and Willie Jones recovered a North Texas fumble in the end zone 44 seconds later as Florida State nailed down its first winning season in five years.

Meanwhile, nose guard Ron Simmons, only a freshman, sacked North Texas quarterbacks five times for 51 yards in losses.

"Ron Simmons kept making the big play," said Coach Bobby Bowden. "I never saw as many big plays as he made tonight."

But it was a disastrous weekend for the Florida Gators, another good bet to disappear from the Top Twenty. Auburn got an SEC record five field goals from Jorge Portela while sophomore Charlie Trotman passed for 177 yards and a touchdown in his first varsity start.

"I was proud of the team for sucking it up and playing hard when a lot of people had given up on us," said Coach Doug Barfield.

Ohio State came out throwing against Wisconsin and Rod Gerald heaved a 79-yard scoring bomb to Jim Harrell on the second play of the game. "We thought they were crowding us," Woody Hayes explained.

Thomas Lott scored three times as Oklahoma rushed for 483 yards and destroyed Kansas State and Joe Montana passed for 260 yards and defensive end Ross Browner set a Notre Dame career record of 295 tackles as the Fighting Irish torpedoed Navy.

Another career mark was set by Michigan quarterback Rick Leach, who tossed his 23rd, 24th and 25th touchdown passes — the three scoring aerials tied a school record — as the Wolverines defeated Iowa.

Two scoring passes and a 45yard TD run by Derrick Ramsey paced Kentucky over Virginia Tech and Michael Forrest scored twice to lead Arkansas over Rice.

The highlight was a school record 97-yard gallop by Greg King, who rushed for 212 yards on 19 carries.

Big Red's playoff chances listed as 'slight' by Coryell

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Either the New York Giants or the St. Louis Cardinals, who once both tottered on the brink of early extinction, will bounce back into the National Football League's title picture tonight.

The heated rivals, who clash on national television, are two of only seven teams in the National Conference scarred by three or fewer defeats.

St. Louis' Don Coryell, the coach of an entry which matches New York's 3-3 record, did not dispute those who previously counted his Cards out of the running for an NFL postseason berth.

"You look at it on paper and you'd have to agree," Coryell said. "People would have to say that any 3-3 team has a very slight chance to make the playoffs. But that doesn't mean that one of them won't make it. Probably one of them will."

St. Louis and New York, until boosted by Sunday's NFC results, were two of four alsorans at the .500 level vying with faint hope for a wild card berth behind division peaders Dallas, now 7-0, and Minnesota, 5-2, and co-leaders Los Angeles and Atlanta, each 4-3.

But defeats suffered by Detroit, 3-4, and the Rams and Falcons have thrust them back into the playoff sweepstakes along with the Washington Redskins, 4-3, and Chicago Bears, 3-4.

"I think this year if we're 10-4 it will be good enough. But it means that we'd have to win seven out of eight games," Coryell had earlier speculated. "You try to flip a coin some time. You don't have one chance in a hundred for it to come up heads seven times."

The Cards and Giants, in addition to benefiting from the scrambled wild card race, have bolstered themselves through recently improved performances.

A bristling defense has rallied New York from its 1-3 start. And St. Louis, by utilizing fully the proven talents of Terry Metcalf, has shoved its explosive offense into high gear.

Master Anglers quality

Lawrence Peters, California, is both. Peters caught the big fish in Binder Lake near here and thus joined the Master Angler Club, sponsored by the Department of Conservation for fishermen whose catches exceed rigorous minimum weight standards for the species.

Alvin Beiter, St. Louis, also had a fine channel cat catch that weighed 19 pounds, 11 ounces.

C. Larry McKinney, Springfield, qualified three times with goggle eye (rock bass) that weighed 1:04, 1:02 and 1:01. Jim Thomas, Fair Grove, had a 4:03 smallmouth bass and Eddie Zavadil, St. Louis, had one 3:08.

Gary Wilhelm, St. Louis, had a 3:02 black crappie and Charles Schneider, Ridgedale, added a 2:10 white crappie Master Angler award to his white bass award.

Joe Turner, Springfield, topped the trout list with a 10 pound, 14 ounce rainbow. Bill Jason, Lincoln, Illinois, had one 8:10; Dale Roland, Hollister, one 7:13; David McClain, Branson, 7:12; F. H. Guth, Hollister, one 7:08; Jimmy Dunlap, Douglass, Kansas, 7:02; famed baseball player and manager Hank Bauer, Overland Park, Kansas, 7:01.

Daniel Gifford, Moberly, a seven-year-old, caught a 4:02 chain pickerel in the Eleven Point River to qualify. Larry Pollard, Gallatin, qualified with an eight pound largemouth bass, as did Forrest Wallace, Jefferson City. Gary Speck, Spickard, qualified with an 11 pound, 12 ounce walleye.

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Oct. 31, the 304th day of 1977. There are 61 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1517, Martin Luther nailed his 95 theses on the chapel door at Castle Church in Wittenberg, Germany.

On this date:

In 1754, Columbia University had its beginning as a royal charter was granted to King's College in New York.

In 1864, Nevada became the 36th state.

In 1955, Britain's Princess Margaret said in a radio broadcast: "I would like it to be known that I have decided not to marry Group Captain Peter Townsend."

In 1956, Britain and France bombed Egypt in the Suez War between Egypt and Israel.

In 1959, a former U.S. Marine, Lee Harvey Oswald, told reporters in Moscow he never would return to the United States.

Five years ago: The cabinet of Chile's President Salvador Allende resigned after three weeks of strikes that had crippled his country's economy.

One year ago: Polls showed that President Gerald Ford had drawn almost even with Jimmy Carter as the nation prepared to vote in a national election.

Thought for today: All things come to him who waits, provided he knows what he is waiting for. — President Woodrow Wilson, 1856-1924.

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Oct. 31, the 304th day of 1977. There are 61 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1517, Martin Luther nailed his 95 theses on the chapel door at Castle Church in Wittenberg, Germany.

On this date:

In 1754, Columbia University had its beginning as a royal charter was granted to King's College in New York.

In 1864, Nevada became the 36th state.

In 1955, Britain's Princess Margaret said in a radio broadcast: "I would like it to be known that I have decided not to marry Group Captain Peter Townsend."

In 1956, Britain and France bombed Egypt in the Suez War between Egypt and Israel.

In 1959, a former U.S. Marine, Lee Harvey Oswald, told reporters in Moscow he never would return to the United States.

Five years ago: The cabinet of Chile's President Salvador Allende resigned after three weeks of strikes that had crippled his country's economy.

One year ago: Polls showed that President Gerald Ford had drawn almost even with Jimmy Carter as the nation prepared to vote in a national election.

Thought for today: All things come to him who waits, provided he knows what he is waiting for. — President Woodrow Wilson, 1856-1924.

Mr. Meany tricked by Bobbin Gobblin

BY JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Mr. Meany lacked a holiday spirit. And, in particular, Halloween went against his spleen. With his doorbell conringing and with strange noises filling the dark night, he decided to sneak around to the back of his house to see who was up to what.

Peeking around a corner, Mr. Meany suddenly found himself face to face with a bobbin' goblin mask. And, making a fist, he quickly smashed into it with his right hand.

Behind the mask was 10-year-old Billy who went home crying with a broken nose. The next day, Billy sued Mr. Meany for his injury.

"I was out tricking and treating," little Billy told the judge. "That was no reason for Mr. Meany to hit me."

"I didn't hit him," grunted Mr. Meany. "I hit a goblin. When I saw it, I just swung out. You can't hate me for that. Besides, if a trespasser tries to scare the owner of property, he does so at his own risk."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Mr. Meany liable for the consequences of swinging at a bobbin' goblin in the dark?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while a property owner owes no duty to protect trespassers, he may not wilfully or wantonly injure them. In this case, concluded the judge, Mr. Meany was aware that it was Halloween and that little boys were tricking and treating in the area. Under the circumstances, he should not have wilfully swung at a goblin face.

The Henry Meldrum Post of the American Legion has already instituted steps toward converting the farmhouse at the municipal airport into a club house for the post and Auxiliary. When the city purchased the airport and golf links grounds recently for $10,000 the five-room house on what was known formerly as the Lillian A. Smith farm, was included in the deal. Originally it was intended to raze the house and large barn at the rear. Now however, the Legion intends to spend $2,500 to $3,000 altering the building for a clubhouse.

Sikeston will get a big city atmosphere with the arrival of four stop-and-go signals, expected here next week. For $999 city firemen, out of their fund, have purchased the lights from a Chicago concern, according to Fire Chief Milburn Arbaugh. They will be placed on Malone at Kingshighway; New Madrid and Stoddard; and at New Madrid and Center.

Funeral services were held Tuesday for Mrs. Minnie Hodge, 44, who died unexpectedly Sunday just after she had been returned from Southeast Missouri Hospital at Cape.

The school board, at its regular meeting Wednesday, decided to repair the roof of the high school, which has been leaking during rains.

Brookfield man recieves $1 million in accident suit

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A 35year-old Brookfield, Mo., man who was paralyzed in an accident nine years ago received a $1 million judgment in Jackson County Circuit Court and his wife received $250,000.

"Thank god it's over with," said James M. Teter, who is paralyzed from the chest down.

The jury returned the verdict Tuesday against John T. Morris, Teter's uncle and driver of a tractor-trailer rig which overturned on Interstate 80 near Oxford, Iowa, pinning both men inside.

Attorneys for both men said it would be inappropriate to comment on whether insurance was involved. It was believed to be the largest judgment ever made in Jackson County.

Attorneys for Morris promised to appeal.

The amount of attention given to paint rollers and flat pad applicators might make a visitor from another planet suppose that paint brushes had gone out of style.

Far from it. They are still essential for many paint jobs, either on their own or used in conjunction with other types of applicators. And one thing has remained as it was before rollers, pads and other paint spreaders were born: Thousands of brushes are thrown out every year because they became hard when their users neglected to clean them or cleaned them improperly.

Brushes used in oil paint or varnish should be cleaned in turpentine, mineral spirits or any kind of paint thinner specified on the label of the paint or varnish. One way is to work the brush back and forth on old newspapers, then do the same in a shallow pan containing the solvent. When the solvent has absorbed a lot of the paint, throw it out and repeat the process. This may have to be done several times, after which the bristles must be washed in a mild detergent and warm water.

Going to doctor not like it used to be for kids

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Remember when you were a kid and you had your tonsils out? You were put under by an evilsmelling gas and woke up scared to death.

Well, medicine is changing, and that atmosphere of fear is going the way of doctors who made house calls.

Pediatric hospitals around the country are erasing the fears of their tiny patients by treating the mind as well as the body and laying the mysteries of medicine out on the table.

At Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, for example, the gas masks smell of root beer and licorice. And Bert and Ernie and Kermit the frog dolls are doctored by the kids themselves who are trying to get better.

During play therapy sessions, the youngsters give their stuffed charges shots and blood transfusions of water, plaster their appendages with casts, and anoint their bodies with Band-Aids. They toss around medical jargon like OR (operating room) and IV (intravenous) with ease.

Sure, when real needles meet real skin, it still hurts. But once understood, needles and other hospital apparatus often aren't as frightening.

"We try to prevent surprises," explains nurse Linda Ogilvie, the hospital's parent services coordinator. "When they don't know what's happening, that's when they really get scared."

"They can bring along their parents, their brothers and sisters, and any children from the neighborhood," says Mrs. Ogilvie.

The puppets teach the kids about the new things they'll experience in the hospital: the higher beds, the wrist identification bracelets, etc. A puppet named "Bobby" talks about what he's going to do before his operation, about the two injections he'll get in the morning.

"For the kids, that's the most traumatic thing," says Mrs. Ogilvie. "Bobby says 'Ouch!' very loud during the show when he gets his injections.

"The kids usually look up into their parents' faces, as if to say, 'is this really going to happen to me?' The parents nod yes. The kids are very quiet. We take the same puppet show to schools sometimes for kids who aren't going into the hospital. They laugh when Bobby says ouch."

The hospital party goers then tour the operating room, the recovery room and the waiting room.

"The morning before surgery we sit down with the child and family and discuss everything we know they'll feel when the youngster wakes up," says Mrs. Ogilvie.

"With the kids who are going to have serious operations, we take them and their parents down to the intensive care unit beforehand. And that can be pretty frightening because they're seeing other children who are pretty sick.

"But they're going to see them anyway. They're going to see them when they wake up from their operation and they're not feeling good and they have all tubes and wires in them. That's no time to start talking about it."

Before operations, patients can play with gas masks, and nurses model operating room caps and masks to give the kids a preview of operating room attire. Dry run "surgery" is performed on either Bert or Ernie, then the "Sesame Street" characters are bandaged up and "sent home to see their buddy, Kermit." The kids and parents seem to love it.

"THERE IS AN ANSWER TO EVERY RIDDLE IN THE UNIVERSE, EXCEPT ONE."

I know the secrets of the stars and the mysteries of the moon. But the origin of The Common Cold has baffled the world's greatest thinkers. Myself included. That's why I turn to the wisdom of the Consumer Information Catalog whenever I feel a tickle in my throat.

It's published by the Federal Government and lists over 200 booklets you can send away for. Over half are free. And all are wise. With tips on relieving a cold, repairing a flat tire, shopping smartly at the supermarket, even how to install solar energy in your home.

So send for this free catalog which you will find very helpful. Write: Consumer Information Center, Dept. B, Pueblo, Colorado 81009. After all, it's hard enough deciphering the mysteries of this planet, without the handicap of an earthshaking sneeze.

Less neutral stance childed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The United States has lost its effectiveness in the Middle East by taking a less than neutral position in the troubled area, Yitzhak Rabin, former Israeli prime minister said Sunday.

"In the past, the U.S. succeeded in bringing about agreements between the Arab nations and the Israelis when it did not take a position," Rabin said at a news conference. "Once the party that goes between takes a position, it loses its effectiveness as as a go-between."

Rabin, in Kansas City for private talks with Jewish leaders, said recent talks with the Soviet Union over the Middle East and the resulting working paper came at a time when Soviet influence in the Arab world was declining.

"To bring the Russians back was, in my opinion, a mistake on the part of the United States and even more I feel it is going to hurt," he said.

Rabin declined to comment when asked if he preferred the shuttle diplomacy of former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Clarence Fowler, 75, of 109 Lynn Drive holds a four-pound sweet potato that he recently dug from his garden in the Mini-Farms subdivision. Fowler said his entire garden was "good size" but he hasn't grown a potato that big since the 1920s.

Congress undecided on gas guzzler tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, convinced the automobile is the chief cause of energy waste, is looking for a way to steer American motorists toward gasoline-stingy cars.

But the lawmakers, who are now considering the transportation part of President Carter's energy program, cannot decide whether to impose a tax that will make inefficient autos unattractive to buyers or to ban them altogether.

The Senate planned to vote today on the tax, similar to the one recommended by Carter and passed by the House.

Meanwhile, a Senate-House conference committee that is considering non-tax portions of Carter's program is hoping to break a deadlock over a provision, already passed by the Senate, that would prohibit production of cars that get poor mileage.

That ban, which House conferees have twice refused to accept, would apply starting in 1981 to cars getting less than 16 miles per gallon, and rising to 21 mpg by 1985.

The auto tax is one of several issues that remain to be considered before the Senate completes work on its energy tax bill. Approval of the bill could come late today, sending it to the conference committee.

Another set of conferees representing the Senate and House will try once again to agree on conditions under which federal Medicaid funds could be used to finance abortions for the poor.

The dispute is tying up a $60.2 billion appropciation bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. Failure to act on that bill could delay paychecks for thousands of federal workers.

The House has voted to allow federally paid abortions only in cases in which the woman's life would be endangered by a fullterm pregnancy and in some rape cases. The more liberal Senate position would require that the health of the woman and her fetus be considered.

In other congressional action, House leaders planned a vote today on a resolution aimed at winning cooperation of the South Korean government in the investigation of alleged efforts by Koreans to buy influence in Congress.

Tuesday will bring House consideration of a bill to implement President Carter's decision granting Alcan Pipeline Corp. the right to build a natural gas pipeline to deliver Alaskan gas to the 48 contiguous states.

Two priority issues stand in the way of convressional adjournment for the year: energy and Social Security. Because of delays in reaching agreement on a national energy policy, adjournment — originally scheduled for Oct. 8 — now is unlikely before the end of November.

The toughest issues on energy — taxes and natural gas pricing — have not even been considered yet by the conference committee that will write the final compromise bill.

Ford echoes Churchill

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — Echoing the concern for creeping Communist control issued by Sir Winston Churchill here 31 years earlier, former President Gerald Ford warned Saturday that communism still endangers Europe and urged U.S. leaders to unequivocally object to it.

"From the shores of the Adriatic to those of the Atlantic, a new specter of Communist control hovers over the countries of western Europe," Ford said, paraphrasing the famous 1946 Iron Curtain speech of the former British prime minister.

Some people, he said, believe that Communists in Europe "are almost the equivalent of Social Democrats." That is a myth, Ford warned.

"Euro-communism is not, as their propagandists say, 'Communism with a human face' - it is Stalinism in a mask and tyranny in disguise," Ford said.

Ford addressed about 4,000 persons in the 35th John Findley Green lecture at Westminster College just before receiving an honorary Doctor of Law degree from the school.

"Some in authority have subtly planted the idea that the United States would have little difficulty in getting along with communists holding key ministries in the government of, say, Italy and France," he said.

"I think I reflect the overwhelming will of the American people when I say that such an impression throughout America is utterly false. This will of our people must be manifested in the words of its leaders. Any ambiguity leaves the impression that we expect the Communists to eventually win."

The White House declined comment on Ford's remarks.

"The harsh truth is that when communism achieves command—either by ballots or bullets or both—freedoom is lost and democracy destroyed," Ford insisted. "Never in the history of free governments has a Communist party, once in control, yielded to a majority vote.

Midwestern farmers pledge strike support

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Driving diesel tractors and eight-ton combines, militant farmers from six Midwestern states gathered Sunday to pledge support for a nationwide farm strike Dec. 14 which supporters say could cripple the American economy.

"If I go down, business which is totally dependent on agriculture will go down too," said Stan DeBoer, a grain farmer from Bertrand, Neb. "That means small town USA would be finished; my children wouldn't be able to grow up on a farm. I've no alternative, I've got to fight."

Approximately 800 persons gathered Sunday afternoon for a rally sponsored by American Agriculture, a loosely knit movement of farmers demanding higher farm prices. The group is headquartered in Springfield, Colo.

The Kansas rally follows similar events in Texas and Georgia, with others scheduled in the weeks ahead in Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Delaware and other farm states.

DeBoer said prices for most commodities are so low that farmers are going broke and he warned that American agriculture increasingly was being bought up by large corporations and foreign investors.

"The nation depends on agriculture," he said. "We spend 19 per cent of our money on recreation and 10 per cent on food. We have our priorities mixed up. Believe me, people, we cannot have cheap food and have the producers continuing to produce and feed his family and survive."

The militant movement has threatened than unless the federal government guarantees parity for agriculture products, farmers will refuse to sell their products and will stop buying agricultural equipment, production supplies or other nonessential items.

Prices set at parity would assure farmers their cost of production plus a profit. Proponents have called on Congress to pass legislation or Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to act under emergency powers to guarantee that floor price.

Under parity, if it cost a bushel of corn or a pound of beef to buy a product 10 years ago, it should still cost a bushel of corn or pound of beef. Prices for both would fluctuate together.

Prior to the rally, farmers paraded through downtown Topeka in a cold drizzle. Signs on the trucks and tractors proclaimed the strike, saying: "Don't Cuss Farmers With Your Belly Full" and "Food is Power — 100 Per Cent Parity or Strike."

License plates on the vehicles included those from Texas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Missouri, as well as Kansas.

Charles Sharp, a grain farmer and cattle rancher from La Belle, Mo., said farmers weren't looking for a handout or a federal subsidy. He said the idea of setting price floors for agricultural products based on cost of production was fair and equitable.

"We are being destroyed, destroyed little by little," Sharp said in an emotional address punctuated by a cheering, stamping, sign-waving crowd.

"We didn't get into this in 1977, or in 1976 or 1975. It has happened slowly, year after year after year. We have quibbled and bickered and fought with one another. It's time we stopped and made up our minds we are going to unite our efforts," he said.

Prior to the rally, Eugene Addison, a Cimarron farmer and strike organizer in Kansas, said the alliance of normally independent farmers is unprecedented. He said the reason was that farmers of all sizes and virtually every segment of production have been hit by low prices.

He predicted that if the movement is successful in getting widespread support, the first food shortage could be dairy products and meat

The auto tax is one of several issues that remain to be considered before the Senate completes work on its energy tax bill. Approval of the bill could come late today, sending it to the conference committee.

Another set of conferees representing the Senate and House will try once again to agree on conditions under which federal Medicaid funds could be used to finance abortions for the poor.

The dispute is tying up a $60.2 billion appropciation bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare. Failure to act on that bill could delay paychecks for thousands of federal workers.

The House has voted to allow federally paid abortions only in cases in which the woman's life would be endangered by a fullterm pregnancy and in some rape cases. The more liberal Senate position would require that the health of the woman and her fetus be considered.

In other congressional action, House leaders planned a vote today on a resolution aimed at winning cooperation of the South Korean government in the investigation of alleged efforts by Koreans to buy influence in Congress.

Tuesday will bring House consideration of a bill to implement President Carter's decision granting Alcan Pipeline Corp. the right to build a natural gas pipeline to deliver Alaskan gas to the 48 contiguous states.

Two priority issues stand in the way of convressional adjournment for the year: energy and Social Security. Because of delays in reaching agreement on a national energy policy, adjournment — originally scheduled for Oct. 8 — now is unlikely before the end of November.

The toughest issues on energy — taxes and natural gas pricing — have not even been considered yet by the conference committee that will write the final compromise bill.

Ford echoes Churchill

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — Echoing the concern for creeping Communist control issued by Sir Winston Churchill here 31 years earlier, former President Gerald Ford warned Saturday that communism still endangers Europe and urged U.S. leaders to unequivocally object to it.

"From the shores of the Adriatic to those of the Atlantic, a new specter of Communist control hovers over the countries of western Europe," Ford said, paraphrasing the famous 1946 Iron Curtain speech of the former British prime minister.

Some people, he said, believe that Communists in Europe "are almost the equivalent of Social Democrats." That is a myth, Ford warned.

"Euro-communism is not, as their propagandists say, 'Communism with a human face' - it is Stalinism in a mask and tyranny in disguise," Ford said.

Ford addressed about 4,000 persons in the 35th John Findley Green lecture at Westminster College just before receiving an honorary Doctor of Law degree from the school.

"Some in authority have subtly planted the idea that the United States would have little difficulty in getting along with communists holding key ministries in the government of, say, Italy and France," he said.

"I think I reflect the overwhelming will of the American people when I say that such an impression throughout America is utterly false. This will of our people must be manifested in the words of its leaders. Any ambiguity leaves the impression that we expect the Communists to eventually win."

"The harsh truth is that when communism achieves command—either by ballots or bullets or both—freedoom is lost and democracy destroyed," Ford insisted. "Never in the history of free governments has a Communist party, once in control, yielded to a majority vote.

Midwestern farmers pledge strike support

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Driving diesel tractors and eight-ton combines, militant farmers from six Midwestern states gathered Sunday to pledge support for a nationwide farm strike Dec. 14 which supporters say could cripple the American economy.

"If I go down, business which is totally dependent on agriculture will go down too," said Stan DeBoer, a grain farmer from Bertrand, Neb. "That means small town USA would be finished; my children wouldn't be able to grow up on a farm. I've no alternative, I've got to fight."

Approximately 800 persons gathered Sunday afternoon for a rally sponsored by American Agriculture, a loosely knit movement of farmers demanding higher farm prices. The group is headquartered in Springfield, Colo.

The Kansas rally follows similar events in Texas and Georgia, with others scheduled in the weeks ahead in Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Delaware and other farm states.

DeBoer said prices for most commodities are so low that farmers are going broke and he warned that American agriculture increasingly was being bought up by large corporations and foreign investors.

"The nation depends on agriculture," he said. "We spend 19 per cent of our money on recreation and 10 per cent on food. We have our priorities mixed up. Believe me, people, we cannot have cheap food and have the producers continuing to produce and feed his family and survive."

The militant movement has threatened than unless the federal government guarantees parity for agriculture products, farmers will refuse to sell their products and will stop buying agricultural equipment, production supplies or other nonessential items.

Prices set at parity would assure farmers their cost of production plus a profit. Proponents have called on Congress to pass legislation or Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to act under emergency powers to guarantee that floor price.

Under parity, if it cost a bushel of corn or a pound of beef to buy a product 10 years ago, it should still cost a bushel of corn or pound of beef. Prices for both would fluctuate together.

Prior to the rally, farmers paraded through downtown Topeka in a cold drizzle. Signs on the trucks and tractors proclaimed the strike, saying: "Don't Cuss Farmers With Your Belly Full" and "Food is Power — 100 Per Cent Parity or Strike."

License plates on the vehicles included those from Texas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Missouri, as well as Kansas.

Charles Sharp, a grain farmer and cattle rancher from La Belle, Mo., said farmers weren't looking for a handout or a federal subsidy. He said the idea of setting price floors for agricultural products based on cost of production was fair and equitable.

"We are being destroyed, destroyed little by little," Sharp said in an emotional address punctuated by a cheering, stamping, sign-waving crowd.

"We didn't get into this in 1977, or in 1976 or 1975. It has happened slowly, year after year after year. We have quibbled and bickered and fought with one another. It's time we stopped and made up our minds we are going to unite our efforts," he said.

Prior to the rally, Eugene Addison, a Cimarron farmer and strike organizer in Kansas, said the alliance of normally independent farmers is unprecedented. He said the reason was that farmers of all sizes and virtually every segment of production have been hit by low prices.

He predicted that if the movement is successful in getting widespread support, the first food shortage could be dairy products and meat high rate of speed left the road on a curve, overturned twice and burned.

He was arrested for careless and imprudent driving by speeding.

Two persons received minor injuries at 2:55 a.m. today on Highway 60, 14 miles east of Charleston on the Mississippi River bridge. An unidentifeid vehicle which left the scene, was on the wrong side of the bridge and struck and broke a mirror on a tractor-trailer unit driven west by Dellas Lafond, 33 of St. Ann, Ill. Glass flew into an open window, cutting Lafond and a passenger, Warl Waybe Kohler, 23, of Chebanse, Ill.

Both of the injured were taken to Padco Hospital in Cairo.

Contest winner
